Keach insists school bullying a problem

■ Waller counters discipline well-maintained

School board challenger Jennifer Keach maintains there are some negative public perceptions about the Henderson

County school district, which incumbent 5th District board member Mike Waller counters with figures and data. Speaking at Thursday night's candidate debate sponsored by the Henderson Chamber of Commerce's Public Policy Committee, Keach said while campaigning door to door she has heard lots of concerns about bullying. "Whether we talk about it or not, children are being bullied," she said. "It is an issue in this school system. Perception is reality. We all know that. So we must do something about it." Waller said he has heard some of the same comments. But over the last three years, he said, "discipline referrals in this district have decreased by close to 20 percent" and discipline hearings by the Henderson County School Board are down 35 to 40 percent. "Positive behavior intervention is making an impact. Perception may seem to be reality, but facts are indeed reality." Keach also maintained the recent fight at Henderson County High School, which injured several teachers, has led to a perception that the high school is unsafe. She softened that statement by saying, "I am not saying that the schools are unsafe, per

Beshear appoints top political rival to judge's post

■ Williams accepts seat in southern Kentucky

By Roger Alford
Associated Press

FRANKFORT — Gov. Steve Beshear got rid of his chief political rival in the Legislature on Friday by luring him out of Frankfort with a higher-paying job as a circuit judge in southern Kentucky. The Democratic governor appointed Republican Senate President David Williams to the judicial position Friday afternoon, ending a long and stormy legislative career. Williams accepted. "Sen. Williams is an experienced lawyer and is familiar with the district, having represented the area in the Legislature for more than 20 years," Beshear said in a brief statement about the appointment that is effective Nov. 2. Williams, a Burkesville attorney, ran against Beshear last year in a vitriolic gubernatorial election that showed an intense dislike between the two. However, Beshear has a record of appointing Republicans to more lucrative government positions to get them out of the Senate. "Well, it doesn't matter what his motivation is," Williams told reporters. "You know, I think he has confidence that I'll be a good circuit judge, and I appreciate the appointment." The salary for Williams' new job about $124,000 a year, more than double what he makes as a lawmaker. Taking the position could also double state pension benefits for the 59-year-old after he retires. Previously, Beshear made Senate Floor Leader Dan Kelly a circuit judge and appointed Senate Appropriations and Revenue Committee Chairman Charlie Borders to the Public Service Commission. Williams' appointment would fill the two years remaining in the term of Circuit Judge Eddie Lovelace, who died in September. To keep the seat, Williams will have to run when it comes up for election in 2014. The Judicial Nominating Commission that recommended Williams for the judgeship had offered Beshear two other options, southern Kentucky lawyers Angela Capps and Stephen Douglas Hurt. But insiders knew Williams

Scavenger hunter goes all out with her inspired entry

By Donna B. Stinnett

A photo scavenger hunt created by The Gleaner and offered to its readers as a Fall Break activity was turned into a work of art by retired civil draftsman and artist Janie Mullins Schmitt. Schmitt went out "three separate times on different days" to search for the sites depicted in "Sacred Places," and after she found them she created a poster board entry with the photos published in the newspaper, maps of each location (and a key to where she found the items in the photos) and hand-lettering. She used her knowledge of geographical and topological settings that she used in her job before she retired as well as her skill at calligraphy and sign lettering. "I loved this search," Schmitt said. "It was just awesome and I had a wonderful experience." It was also a trip down memory lane, she said. As she searched, she said, she recalled walks from her grandmother's house on Madison Street with family members to a nearby Baptist Church. Her father, she said, would walk to the Methodist church, which gave her a connection to that site, and later her mother inspired them both to become confirmed in the Episcopal Church. Her visit to Immanuel Baptist brought back memories of her daughter having served as a flower girl there in a cousin's wedding, and at Holy Name she saw a plaque honoring the Rev. Edward

East Coast warily tracks Sandy's path

By Seth Borenstein
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — When Hurricane Sandy becomes a hybrid weather monster some call "Frankenstorm" it will smack the East Coast harder and wider than last year's damaging Irene, forecasters said Friday. The brunt of the weather mayhem will be concentrated where the hurricane comes ashore early Tuesday, but there will be hundreds of miles of steady, strong and damaging winds and rain for the entire Eastern region for several days, according to the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration. The hurricane has killed at least 20 people in the Caribbean, and just left the Bahamas. It is expected to move north, just off the Eastern Seaboard.

Heady expects return to bench

District judge injured falling from tree stand

By Victoria Grabner
vgrabner@thegleaner.com
270-831-8341

The district judge for Union, Web-ster and Crittenden counties expects to return to the bench in the very near future after falling from a tree stand while hunting on Oct. 17.

“My prognosis is positive despite the fact that I cannot currently walk,” Daniel M. Heady said in a statement.

He added that he still has a wide range of sensation and feeling in his legs and some muscle movement in his lower body.

“I know that my injury is going to take a long time to heal, but I fully ex-pect to return to my normal functions in life very soon,” Heady added.

He said the severe injury to his lower back came after an 18-foot fall from a tree stand that unexpectedly broke and fell out from under him at 4:48 p.m.

Fortunately, Heady said, he was able to retrieve his cellphone and call his close friend Doug Turley, who led emergency medical technicians and other first responders and friends to his location within less than 20 min-utes.

After being stabilized for transport and carried on a stretcher for more than 200 yards, he was loaded onto a LifeFlight emergency helicopter and arrived at Deaconess Hospital around 6 p.m.

During surgery, his neurosurgeon removed bone fragments that were placing pressure on his spinal cord before reinforcing, repairing and re-placing his damaged lower vertebra-te. “Surgery was successful, and my neurosurgeon assured me that my spinal cord was intact and was not severed,” Heady said.

He remained in recovery at Deacon-ess Hospital until Tuesday and then was transported to Frazier Rehab Insti-tute in Louisville for intensive rehabili-tation for spinal cord and nerve injury.

During Heady’s treatment, the dis-trict courts in Crittenden, Union and Webster counties have operated and will continue to operate without inter-ruption, he said.

“Although the exact date of my re-turn is unknown at this point, I have every reason and expectation of re-turning to the bench and resuming my other duties in the very near future,” he said.

“I would ask for your continued prayers and support and ask that you especially keep my family and close friends in your thoughts and prayers as they have also been drastically affected by my injury.”

U.S. lacked early info on Benghazi attack

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The U.S. military did not quickly in-tervene during the attack on the U.S. Consulate in Libya last month because military leaders did not have ade-quate intelligence informa-tion and felt they should not put American forces at risk, Defense Secretary Leon Pa-netta said Thursday.

In his most extensive comments to date on the unfolding controversy surrounding the attack in Benghazi, Panetta said U.S. forces were on heightened alert because of the anniver-sary of 9/11 and prepared to respond. But, he said, the attack happened over a few hours and was over before the U.S. had the chance to know what was really hap-pening.

“(The) basic principle is that you don’t deploy forces into harm’s way without knowing what’s going on; without having some real-time information about what’s taking place,” Panetta told Pen-tagon reporters. “And as a result of not having that kind of information, the commander who was on the ground in that area, Gen. Ham, Gen. Dempsey and I felt very strongly that we could not put forces at risk in that situation.”

Kentucky Wesleyan College hosting film festival

Gleaner staff

Kentucky Wesleyan College will host the sec-ond annual River City Festival of Films on Nov. 3, from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. in the Winchester Campus Community Center with P.J. Starks of Verite Cin-ema.

The event will feature workshops with industry professionals, including actors, writers and produc-ers, and the opportunity to discuss the craft with par-ticipating filmmakers. Film screenings are $4 each and $2 with student identifica-tion.

All proceeds will go to New Beginnings, an Ow-ensboro sexual assault sup-port agency. The all-genre charity event will celebrate the art of independent films and the diverse mix of talented filmmakers in the region and beyond.

Assistant Professor of English Tamara Coy said hosting a film festival at an educational venue is a novel approach with only a few others in the United States each year.

“As students pursue any vocation, having the oppor-tunity to see the process in practice consolidates learn-ing,” she said. “I wanted my students to see that screen-writing and filmmaking is not just big-budget Holly-wood and computer effects. It is about themes and tone and cinematography and having a passion about your dreams. P.J. and his many associates embody this love of filmmaking.”

Coy teaches a KWC screenwriting class using the professional software, “Final Draft.”

Screenings include TV writer Lee Goldberg’s “Bumsicle,” which was filmed in Owensboro last spring, and “The Windy Hollow Boys,” a docu-mentary by Rick Miller. A total of 21 films will be screened, including short and feature-length films.

“We did an indie film se-ries last fall at KWC with Professor Coy and appre-ciated the opportunity to

Effort lets districts be more like charter schools

■ Officials finalizing rules for initiative

By Bruce Schreiner
Associated Press

LOUISVILLE — Top Kentucky education officials on Friday previewed an application process for school districts to operate more like charter schools, freed from a host of laws and regulations to run more independently. The goal is to turn public schools into testing grounds for new approaches that better prepare students for college and careers.

Participating school districts would gain more flexibility on such core issues as curriculum, instruction, funding and school scheduling. In return, districts would offer commitments to improve student performance, especially among low-achieving students.

State officials are still finalizing rules for the initiative. As a result, districts won't start getting the designations to operate more like charters until the 2013-14 school year.

Speaking at a conference attended by many local school officials, Kentucky Education Commissioner Terry Holliday said the goal is to get away from "business as usual" by promoting classroom innovations that go beyond what existing laws and regulations allow.

"We want you outside of the box," he said. "We want you to not even think about the box."

State education officials hope that advances made by the participating districts will spread statewide.

The initiative stems from legislation passed by the 2012 General Assembly and signed into law by Gov. Steve Beshear.

It taps into the growing popularity of charter schools nationwide.

Kentucky has no charter schools, which are funded by taxpayers but operate independently of many of the laws and regulations governing traditional public schools.

More than 2 million students nationwide now attend charters, a big surge in the last decade, and the Obama administration has encouraged their expansion through initiatives like Race to the Top, the multi-billion-dollar grant competition.

In Kentucky, districts wanting to be more charter-like would apply to the Kentucky Department of Education to gain designation as a "District of Innovation."

If approved, the status would apply to whichever schools are part of the district's proposal. It could be every school in a district or just one or two.

Teachers would have a voice in the application. Before a school is added to an application, at least 70 percent of its teachers have to give their approval.

Districts also would have to demonstrate how they reward risk-taking in education and how being more charter-like would improve student performance.

'If You Give a Mouse' on HFAC stage in November

Gleaner staff

The next offering in the Family Series presented by Henderson Area Arts Alliance at Henderson Fine Arts Center is coming up next Saturday, Nov. 3.

The show is "If You Give A Mouse A Cookie & Other Story Books" — actually eight stories — performed by Theatreworks USA.

Performed by a multiracial cast, the stories represent various issues, themes and ideas relevant to a broad and diverse audience of children.

Books featured in the show include: "Amazing Grace", "Borreguita and the Coyote", "If you Give a Mouse a Cookie," "Imogene's Antlers," "Master Man," "Math Curse" and "Owen." Tickets are $10.

Curtain time is 11 a.m.

Beginning at 10:15 a.m., the Arts Alliance will partner with the Thelma B. Johnson Early Learning Center to present some costumed characters from the, "If You Give A..." series, including a pig, a mouse, a moose, a cat and a dog.

The final show in the Family Series is set for Dec. 9 and is the Children's Center for Dance Education's 17th annual production of "The Children's Nutcracker." The one-hour production tells the story of a young German girl who dreams of a Nutcracker Prince and a fierce battle against a Mouse

King, and then goes on a magical journey through a wonderful land with the prince.

To purchase tickets, call the Henderson Fine Arts Center box office at 831-9800. Hours of operation are Monday through Friday, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Groups of 10 or more are eligible for seating at a discounted rate to all shows.

The Henderson Area Arts Alliance offers a shuttle service to patrons unable to drive to the Henderson Fine Arts Center. The shuttle pick up point is Central Park in downtown Henderson. Round trip tickets are $5. Call the Henderson Area Arts Alliance at 826-5916 for reservations.

Smoking cessation program starting up

Wishing you could quit smoking but don't know how?

Methodist Hospital is offering the Cooper Clayton Method to Stop Smoking 13-week program starting at 2:30 p.m. Nov. 6 in the basement classrooms.

The free weekly one-hour sessions will continue for 12 weeks, concluding Jan. 29. Participants will be required to purchase a $5 course book and nicotine replacement product of their choice.

The Cooper-Clayton Method to Stop Smoking was developed more than 20 years ago by two faculty members at the University of Kentucky. Thomas Cooper, DDS, a dentist and former heavy smoker, developed the program with Richard Clayton, Ph.D., an expert on drug addiction.

The Cooper-Clayton Method is a safe and effective way to help people stay smoke-free for the rest of their lives. It provides weekly education sessions in conjunction with a warm and accepting support group environment. Participants are instructed on how to utilize nicotine replacement products such as the nicotine patch, nicotine gum or nicotine lozenge. The program encourages the use of nicotine replacement therapy, but the support group is crucial to being successful.

The Cooper-Clayton Method is facilitated by health care professionals specially trained in evaluating individual smoking patterns, introducing behavior modification techniques, leading group discussions and minimizing relapse. The program offers expertise, encouragement and the motivation needed to become smoke-free.

Preregistration is strongly encouraged. To register, or for more information, contact the Education and Research Department at Methodist Hospital, at 827-7114.

Lane Goodwin fundraiser planned

A Halloween costume contest event to benefit the family of Lane Goodwin is planned for tonight at Rookie's in downtown Henderson.

The event will run from 8 p.m. to 2 a.m. and will include several contests. You do not have to wear a costume to attend.

Admission is $15 per person and all proceeds go to the Goodwin family.

Violin, piano recital set in Owensboro

A violin and piano recital will take place at Kentucky Wesleyan College in Owensboro on Nov. 4.

Alfred Abel, Visiting Artist in Violin at Kentucky

Wesleyan College, will partner with pianist Diane Earle, Artist in Residence, for the duo recital at 2 p.m. at the College's Tapscott Chapel.

The pair will perform music by Bach, Beethoven, Sarasate and Saint-Saens. They have performed many concerts in several states in their five-year partnership. The program is free and open to the public, and a reception will follow.

For more information, contact Earle at 270-852-3617.

Ramblings ... Hughie, Steve and others

Let me ramble a little bit.

Recently I was talking to my East End buddy Don Burris about the old days when good ole common sense was the way of life, with a few manmade laws on the side that got us through the “Dirty Thirties,” the “Uppity Forties” and the “Nifty Fifties.”

Political rallies were held, and the wannabes were begging for the vote. We had precinct captains, block captains, poll workers, door knockers and drivers, along with humility.

Miss Alma Sellers and Trudy Hancock were extremely strong political ladies who helped to move the East End to where many elections were won and lost. The old East End is gone forever and cannot be resurrected; only memories linger.

Another ramble ... Judge Hughie and his yes boys started out with good intentions to protect Sandy’s Park, but since have flagged the whole county. That’s created another problem for the sheriff. If Ed would deputize about 500 ski party-goers, he’d have a party posse.

Another ramble ... All the political wannabes should have tried Mayor Steve’s strategy. Steve, a political unknown, published about ten Hoosier jokes, got us laughing and our attention, and then announced he was running for mayor and won hands down. It will be about three years before we hear another good Hoosier joke.

Another ramble ... Mr. Pruitt should continue to stir the political pot, but he should have another alternative to put in the pot. Retroaction alone holds up progress.

Keep on dancin’ ...

Paul DeSpain right person for Kentucky

This letter is to express my strong support for Mr. Paul DeSpain, candidate for the Kentucky House of Representatives for District 11.

I have known Mr. DeSpain for decades and know him to be an intelligent and thoughtful man, a loving father and husband, and a religious man.

He deeply believes in our U.S. Declaration of Independence and our U.S. Constitution, especially in the First, Second and Tenth Amendments.

He is both a fiscal and social conservative. He strongly supports the right to life, and he definitely is opposed to Obamacare, which is socialized medicine which has failed in Canada, England, Cuba and every other country where it has been tried. Paul strongly supports the Kentucky coal industry, as do I.

His opponent, on the other hand is not pro-life and strongly supports Obamacare. Why on Earth would a physician want to bring socialized medicine to this county?

Mr. DeSpain is a true conservative, believing in the principles on which this country was founded. His opponent on the other hand is a far left wing liberal. Is that what you want for Kentucky? I don’t.

Paul DeSpain is the right choice for Kentucky, and I urge you to elect him as our next representative for District 11.

Pruitt brings much needed honesty

Commissioner Robert Pruitt not only has my vote, he had my back when he was the only commissioner over the past six years who dared to stand up and speak out against the other city commissioners’ violation of my constitutionally guaranteed rights, when he said, “Give this man his hearing!”

The Good Ol’ Boys, City Commissioners Mike Farmer, Robby Mills and former Mayor Tom Davis along with several other city employees and staff are all parties to a federal suit challenging the city’s occupational license ordinance.

The judge has already ruled they were a party to a violation of James Phillips’ rights guaranteed him by the United States Constitution.

Although I’m not suggesting that some things Pruitt brings up might not be grandstanding, after all he is a politician, what I think he does bring to the table is much needed honesty.

Though it might have taken the commission to agree to revisit the city employee insurance issue, it was only Pruitt who had a rally and truly listened to the city employees. “Representation,” in my opinion, is the primary duty of all our federal, state and local elected officials.

Now the city is being sued in both federal and state courts. In the federal case the court has already ruled that the city was wrong and the city’s highly paid attorneys did not appeal that ruling.

In my state suit they made ridiculous arguments trying to get the suit dismissed and let the deadline to answer my suit pass.

Our elected city officials need to quit wasting the taxpayer’s hard earned tax dollars on an issue they have already clearly lost and come up with a plan to refund the money they stole from businesses for their 2006 occupational license taxes.

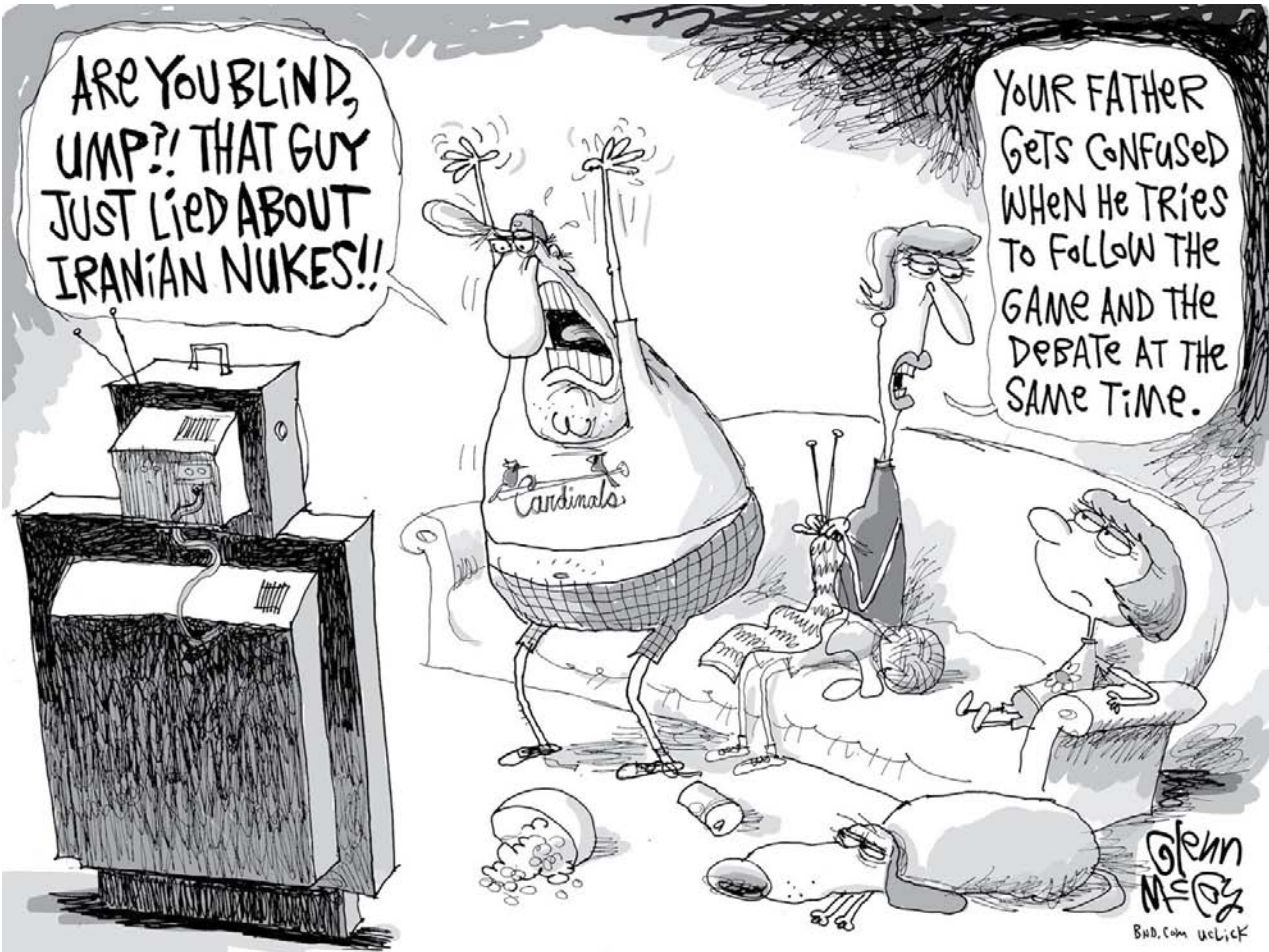

Commissioner Pruitt had my back when us “short-changed” citizens’ constitutional rights were being violated, and he can be darn sure that I am going to have his back when election day rolls around and so are a lot of others.

Commissioner Pruitt has my vote, and I’m behind him 100 percent.

Waller obvious choice for school board

In every election, voters are faced with making a decision to vote for a candidate they feel will support their best interests and do what is in the best interest for an entire community. The voters in the 5th District school board race are faced with just such a decision on Nov. 6.

They can choose a candidate that is a transplant to the community, or they can choose Mike Waller, whose family has had four generations of students educated in the Henderson public school system.

They can choose a candidate that has worked with various organizations for social, personal and political gain, or they can choose Mike Waller, who has worked in public education for more than 30 years, 24 of those as a member of the Henderson County Board of Education for the benefit of the kids and the community.

They can choose a candidate that has no experience as a member of a board of education, or they can choose Mike Waller, who has 24 years of experience, more than 300 hours of Kentucky School Board Association training and has attended more than 600 meetings of the Henderson County Board of Education.

Mike Waller has made tough choices over the years to ensure the financial stability of our school system without sacrificing continual improvements in our schools. Mike has reached out to help many children and parents through his constant volunteer work and fundraisers along with his dedicated service as a board member.

To the voters of the 5th District, we encourage you to make the obvious choice and re-elect Mike Waller as your Henderson County Board of Education member.

Sally Potts, Henderson

Country’s morals at stake in election

Never in our nation’s history has there been such a difference between the two party platforms. This election is going to determine whether or not the very moral fabric of our country will be upheld or torn apart.

The Republican platform is strong on Godly values: Sanctity of life, upholding the institution of marriage between one man and one woman, stating God is our Creator and Sustainer, Israel is God’s chosen and freedom of religion.

The Democratic platform speaks for itself: Abortion without regulation and homosexual marriage. They removed mention of God and only replaced one mention after outrage by some. They deny Israel and force people of faith to pay for other people’s contraceptives and abortion-causing pills (denying religious freedom). God clearly states in His Word how he feels about taking innocent lives and homosexuality, Israel and worshipping Him everywhere and in all ways.

If I had to base my vote on one issue it would be this. The president voted four times against the Born Alive Infant Protection Act when he was in the Illinois Senate. His was the only nay vote.

It is beyond my comprehension to understand how a man could vote to deny a baby medical attention and let it die after it survived an abortion. This is not the kind of man I want as president.

As Bible-believing, lovers of Christ we are to be rooted in imitation of the morally perfect character of and conform to God’s commands. No amount of human rationalization can change that. People with no true understanding of God may twist it anyway they like, but God’s truth will stand until the end of time.

Some of you may not see the significance of moral issues, but without moral standards life is chaos, more like Dante’s Hell.

You cannot separate your faith from your politics. So, I ask as Joshua did, “Choose you this, this day, whom you will serve.”

Jake Durbin, Henderson

Obama’s put U.S. on road to collapse

While Obama was on the campaign trail, he promised the American people that:

- 1) I promise I will support traditional marriage, one man, one woman.
- 2) I promise 100 percent transparency in my administration.
- 3) I will allow five days of public comment before I sign any bills.
- 4) I will remove earmarks from pork projects before I sign any bills.

- 5) I will end income tax for seniors making less than 50,000 per year.
 - 6) I will bring all troops home within one year.
 - 7) I will put health care negotiations on C-span.
 - 8) I will have no lobbyists in my administration.
 - 9) I will close Guantanamo.
 - 10) I will cut the deficit in half by the end of four years.
- He increased the debt by $6 trillion dollars.
- 11) I will unite the great people of this great country.
- Obama was right on the money when he said he would bankrupt coal-fired power plants through taxes and regulations, close coal mines and energy prices will necessarily skyrocket.
- Our national debt is $4 trillion dollars more than the European Union’s annual gross domestic product. It is obvious that Obama’s main objective is to turn America into a full blown socialist country. America is also on the same path that led Greece and Spain to economic collapse.
- According to Karl Marx, the patron of communism, socialism is a temporary bus stop on the road to communism. Obama may not have created many private sector jobs, but he and the EPA have created a war on American businesses.
- The 900 regulations that Obama has imposed on American businesses have cost them more than $46 billion since he became president. Obama has also created a war of poor against rich, women against men and blacks against whites.
- This country hasn’t been this divided since the Civil War.
- Obama, the self-proclaimed uniter turned out to be the great divider. So much for hope and change. The change America desperately needs now is a new president and real leadership before it is too late. Wake up, America.

Dorothy Shoulders, Henderson

The choice for president is Romney

Election Day is upon us. This is the most important and serious election I have ever lived to see. Before Obama ran for election, he wrote a book in which he said, “I will never turn my back on my Muslim brothers.” He went to church for 20 years where his pastor preached hate of both America and white people. He was voted in anyway.

He has pushed this racist thing all through his term. Are you a racist if you are against his policies?

The Muslim agenda has always been to marry into the American culture and raise their children up to put time in our government. We have those in our Congress and those that Obama has placed in jobs in his administration.

Obama has celebrated Ramadan in our White House at least twice that we know of, once with Quadaffi, since he has been in office. He went into a mosque on one of his “trips” and prayed with the Muslims. Muslims pray to Allah; Christians do not do that.

Even his pastor Wright said that he had prayed with him but didn’t know if it took.

We have a choice this year. We have Romney who spent most of his life as a businessman, has proved that he can create jobs and manage money. He also served in government as a governor. He balanced their budget, created jobs and made a health plan that worked for that state. He is also a decent man of high morals, is pro-life and a good family man.

We have Obama who has no record to run on, has never accepted responsibility for anything he has done except for killing Bin Laden, which he didn’t do. He just gave the order. Our brave SEALS did that!

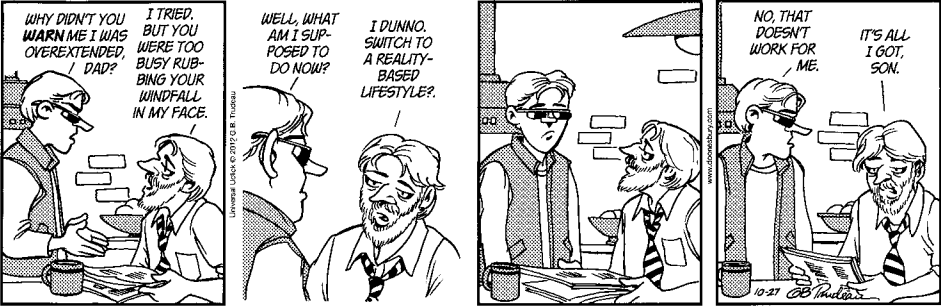

He has driven our deficit up and bailed out, with tax money, green energy companies. All belied up, taking our money with them. Fourteen green energy companies have gone bankrupt.

He took billions of dollars out of our Medicare and put it into Obamacare. If you, as one on Medicare, do not think this has hurt Medicare, go to the doctor or the hospital, you might be surprised what Medicare doesn’t pay anymore.

Obamacare is a financial disaster. It’s socialized medicine without the name.

Pray for this election!

Nanny's case shocks parents

By David B. Caruso and Meghan Barr
Associated Press

NEW YORK — The nightmarish case of a nanny accused of stabbing to death two children in her care stunned the family's well-to-do neighborhood and caused legions of parents to wonder how well they know who is watching their kids.

The nanny, Yoselyn Ortega, lay in critical condition Friday with what police said were self-inflicted knife wounds, and investigators were unable to question her because she was still breathing with the help of a tube.

Her motive and mental state remained a mystery, and no immediate charges were filed.

On Thursday evening, the children's mother, Marina Krim, brought her 3-year-old daughter home from a swim lesson to find her other youngsters, ages 2 and 6, dying of knife wounds in the bathtub of their Upper West Side apartment near Central Park. Ortega then turned the blade on herself, police said.

Police Commissioner Raymond Kelly said the investigation has yet to reveal anything amiss in the household before the slayings.

Police were looking into whether Ortega, a 50-year-old naturalized U.S. citizen who had worked for the family for two years, had recently sought psychiatric help.

There are tens of thousands of nannies working in New York City, but reports of serious violence by caregivers against children are exceedingly rare. Parents are accused of killing their own children with far more frequency.

"For working parents this is a nightmare. Every mother I know is asking today, 'How do I go back to work?'" said mother Denise Albert, who has two young children and lives a few blocks from the site of the tragedy.

Some parents said their trust in their nannies is unshaken.

"It's a horrible tragedy, but it doesn't make me question my nanny at all," said Elizabeth McCarthy, a single mother of a 6-year-old boy. "For me, I found somebody I trust. She's an incredible part of my son's life. She's a wonderful person, she's raised children of her own, and this doesn't make me in the least bit question anything about her."

A nanny in the Krims' neighborhood, Karen Henry, said she felt uncomfortable walking around after the deaths. "Parents are looking at you as though you're responsible for what happened," she said.

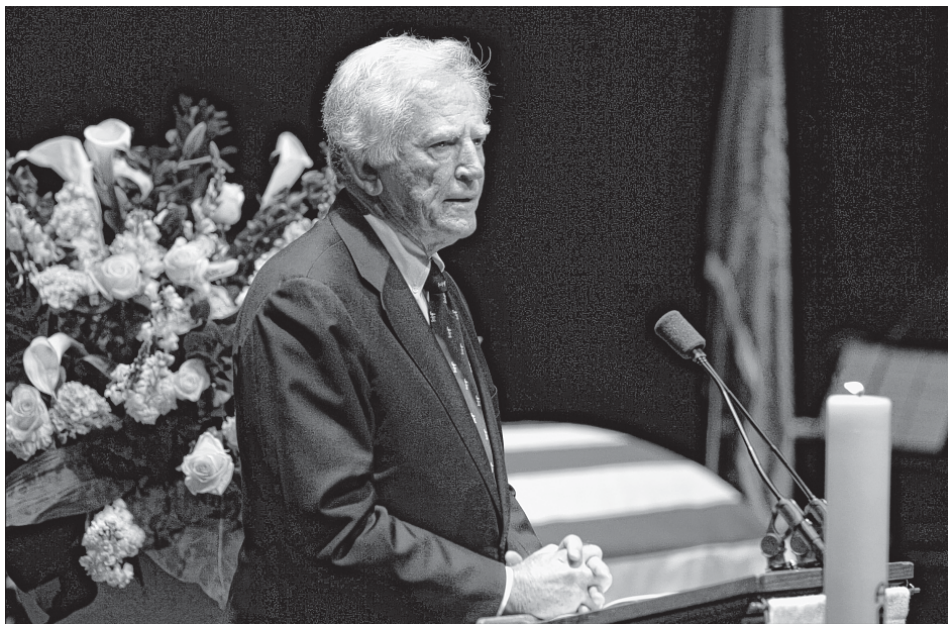

Family, friends remember McGovern

By Chet Brokaw and Brian Bakst

SIoux FALLS, S.D. — George McGovern made history with his loss of the 1972 presidential election in a historic landslide, but he was praised Friday for galvanizing the Democratic Party's liberal wing and inspiring a new generation to take up his causes.

At his funeral, friends and colleagues remembered McGovern as an early critic of the Vietnam War, a tireless fighter in the battle to feed the poor around the world and a man who will continue to draw young people into public life.

the courage of their conviction," said former Colorado Sen. Gary Hart, who was McGovern's campaign manager in 1972.

Hart was one of three former Democratic presidential candidates who paid personal respects Friday to McGovern, who died Sunday at age 90 after a brief stay in hospice care. Hart, Walter Mondale and John Kerry — who like McGovern all spent time in the Senate before unsuccessful runs for the White House — led a crowd of hundreds of mourners. Hart was the only one of the three to speak at the funeral.

"George McGovern was a voice of conscience for our nation in our time," Hart said. Those who were uncomfortable with McGovern called him a liberal as an insult to try to imply he was weak, Hart added, but "he was larger than any political label, particularly a demonized one."

Berlusconi hit with tax fraud conviction

MILAN — Just two days after announcing he won't run in spring elections, former Italian Premier Silvio Berlusconi was convicted of tax fraud and sentenced to four years in prison Friday in a verdict that could see him barred from public office for five years.

Berlusconi, after dominating Italian politics for nearly two decades, has seen his power weakening in the last year as a sex scandal tarnished his image and he was forced to resign as premier after failing to convince financial markets that he could come up with convincing reforms to shield Italy from Europe's debt woes.

In the latest blow, the 76-year-old billionaire media mogul received the stiffest sentence among the four co-defendants convicted in a scheme that involved inflating the price his media empire paid for TV rights to U.S. movies and pocketing the difference. And the sentence was more than the three years and eight months sought by prosecutors.

AFGHANISTAN

At least 41 killed in suicide bombing

KABUL — A suicide bomber detonated explosives outside a mosque packed with senior regional officials in northern Afghanistan on a major Muslim holiday Friday, killing 41 people. The officials escaped unhurt, and many of the dead were soldiers and police.

The attack was the latest in a series of deadly strikes in recent weeks against Afghan army, police and government officials.

The choice of targets suggests that the insurgents are increasingly turning against Afghan authorities and security forces now that NATO is drawing down toward a final withdrawal of foreign combat troops in 2014.

Deaths of Afghan police and soldiers are higher this year than last year, according army spokesman Gen. Mohammad Zaher Azimi. Although the Taliban have claimed responsibility for a parallel sharp increase in attacks by Afghan servicemen on their foreign colleagues, the overall number of coalition deaths has been noticeably lower than last year.

Health Minister Soraya Dalil said 41 people were killed and 56 wounded in Friday's attack.

Iranian dissidents win freedom awards

STRASBOURG — Two Iranian dissidents — a lawyer and a film director — were awarded the 2012 Sakharov Prize for Freedom of Thought.

The European Parliament awarded the prize Friday to Nasrin Sotoudeh and Jafar Panahi.

Martin Schulz, the president of the parliament, said it was "a message of solidarity and recognition to a woman and a man who have not been bowed by fear and intimidation."

Sotoudeh, a lawyer who represented imprisoned Iranian opposition activists following the disputed June 2009 presidential elections, is now in prison herself.

Panahi's films are known for their humanist perspective on life in Iran, often focusing on the hardships of children, the poor and women.

He won the Camera d'Or at the 1995 Cannes Film Festival.

Syrian toddler, 2, believed dead, reunites with family

By Menelaos Hadjicostis

NICOSIA, Cyprus — No one knows how long little Bushr Al Tawashi wandered alone in the rubble of his home in the Syrian capital before rebel fighters found the toddler and handed him over to another family to look after.

Now, the 2-year-old is back with his parents, who believed he had been killed.

In their chaotic haste to escape fighting between government troops and Syrian rebels, Bushr's parents had assumed the boy was picked up by other members of their extended family who were staying with them when clashes broke out last summer in the Damascus suburb of Al Kaboun.

Heavy fighting prevented the parents from going back to search for Bushr once they arrived at a refugee camp and realized he was missing, said Stella Constantinou, a Cypriot lawyer.

Believing he did not survive the shelling, the boy's grief-stricken father, Machhour Al Tawashi, and his wife, Arin Al Dakkar, arrived in Cyprus on Aug. 6 along with their two other sons, ages 4 and 6, in search of asylum.

Word the boy was safe eventually reached the parents, who now live in the coastal town of Limassol.

"You can imagine how they felt when they were told their son was alive after bearing all this guilt thinking that he was dead," Constantinou said.

Al Tawashi said that someone had recognized Bushr since everyone knows each other in their tight-knit community, and called the family in Cyprus to deliver the good news.

The family then sought Constantinou's help to bring him to this Mediter-

Police to question teen suspect

DENVER — Police in a Colorado town where the body of a missing 10-year-old girl was found said Friday that they want to question a teenage suspect in two unsolved child enticement cases.

A sketch developed in the September incidents bears some resemblance to 17-year-old Austin Sigg, who's being held on suspicion of first-degree murder and kidnapping in the death of Jessica Ridgeway, Arvada police spokesman Sgt. Mark Nazaryk said.

The sketch and Sigg's mug shot wasn't an exact match, Nazaryk noted.

He also said investigators were trying to determine if Sigg had access to a royal blue, four-door sedan described by witnesses in both cases.

The September child enticement cases involved a man who tried to lure two boys about the same age as Jessica into a car.

No suspects were identified in those incidents.

Sigg is being held without bail on suspicion of murder and kidnapping in the death of Jessica, and attempted murder and attempted kidnapping in the case of runner at a neighborhood lake in May. Prosecutors were expected to formally charge him next week.

Senator taken to hospital after crash

LAS VEGAS — Senate Majority Leader Harry Reid was discharged from the hospital less than three hours after an apparent rear-end crash Friday afternoon on a Las Vegas freeway, a hospital spokeswoman said.

Reid suffered rib and hip contusions in the crash that happened about 1:10 p.m. Friday on Interstate 15, staffers said. He was taken to the hospital by his security detail as a precaution. Troopers had earlier reported he was transported by ambulance.

Reid, 72, was wearing a seatbelt at the time of impact and walked into the hospital on his own, according to a statement from his office.

A members of Reid's staff and other people in the senator's security detail had minor injuries and were taken to the hospital for evaluation, the statement said.

Six vehicles were involved in the apparent chain-reaction crash, including two Las Vegas police vehicles and two capitol police vehicles that were escorting Reid.

U.S. sends Japan 150 dogwood trees

WASHINGTON — Cherry blossom trees donated to the United States are a springtime delight in the capital. Now the State Department is returning the favor by sending American dogwood trees to Tokyo.

Secretary of State Hillary Rodham Clinton made the announcement April 30 during an official visit to the United States by Japanese Prime Minister Yoshihiko Noda.

A ceremonial sendoff of the first 150 dogwood trees was held Oct. 22 at the National Arboretum.

Sending thousands of trees across the world requires attention to detail. State Department officials must make sure the trees meet customs standards in both countries and guarantee that the trees survive the journey.

Richard Olsen, a research geneticist with the National Arboretum, has managed the logistics.

Car bombs, violence mar Syria's shaky truce

By Karin Laub and Zeina Karam
Associated Press

BEIRUT — Two deadly car bombs and sporadic fighting marred a shaky holiday truce Friday in Syria, although thousands of protesters used the brief respite in the civil war to pour into the streets and demand President Bashar Assad's ouster.

Chants of "Syria wants freedom!" rang out in the streets in the largest demonstrations in months, suggesting that a 19-month-old crackdown and sustained violence has not broken the spirit of those trying to rid the country of Assad's rule.

But even if a cease-fire holds for the intended four-day Muslim holiday of Eid al-Adha, it's unlikely to be a springboard for ending the conflict that has already claimed more than 35,000 lives.

Syria mediator Lakhdar Brahimi, the U.N.-Arab League envoy, has not charted a way forward or said how he would bridge the deep divide between Assad and his opponents. The Syrian president won't resign and the opposition says it won't negotiate a transition deal until he does.

Brahimi's plan marks the first attempt by the international community in six months to scale back the violence that has displaced hundreds of thousands of people and devastated entire neighborhoods. A more comprehensive U.N. cease-fire plan in April quickly collapsed.

Italian court blames benign brain tumor on cell usage

The Associated Press

ROME — Italy’s top court has ruled that a businessman developed a benign brain tumor because he held a cellphone to his ear for hours daily for his job and deserves workers’ compensation.

Innocente Marcolini, whose face is partially paralyzed, argued that using cell and portable phones six hours a day for 12 years while dealing with clients in China and elsewhere overseas caused the tumor on the trigeminal nerve in his head.

His lawyers presented doctors who testified that excessive cellphone use increases risk of such tumors.

U.N.: World has 6 billion cell subscribers

The Associated Press

GENEVA — The world now has nearly as many cellphone subscriptions as inhabitants.

The U.N. telecom agency says there were about 6 billion subscriptions by the end of 2011 — roughly one for 86 of every 100 people.

In a recent report, the International Telecommunication Union said China alone accounted for 1 billion subscriptions, and India is expected to hit the 1-billion mark this year.

The Geneva-based agency says 2.3 billion people — or about one in three of the world’s 7 billion inhabitants — were Internet users by the end of 2011, but there’s a strong disparity between rich and developing countries.

ITU says 70 percent of people who use the Internet live in wealthier, industrialized countries.

SAN FRANCISCO — In this tech-savvy city teeming with commuters and tourists, the cellphone has become a top target of robbers who use stealth, force and sometimes guns.

Nearly half of all robberies in San Francisco this year are cell phone-related, police say, and most occur on bustling transit lines.

One thief recently snatched a smartphone while sitting right behind his unsuspecting victim and darted out the rear of a bus in mere seconds.

Another robber grabbed an iPhone from an oblivious bus rider — while she was still talking.

And, in nearby Oakland, City Council candidate Dan Kalb was robbed at gunpoint of his iPhone Wednesday after he attended a neighborhood anti-crime meeting.

“I thought he was going to shoot me,” recalled Kalb, who had dropped his phone during the stickup. “He kept saying, ‘Find the phone! Find the phone!’ ”

These brazen incidents are part of a ubiquitous crime wave striking coast to coast. New York City Police report that more than 40 percent of all robberies now involve cellphones. And cellphone thefts in Los Angeles, which account for more than a quarter of all the city’s robberies, are up 27 percent from this time a year ago, police said.

“This is your modern-day purse snatching,” said longtime San Francisco Police Capt. Joe Garrity, who began noticing the trend here about two years ago. “A lot of younger folks seem to put their entire lives on these things that don’t come cheap.”

Thefts of cellphones — particularly the expensive do-it-all smartphones containing everything from photos and music to private emails and bank account statements — are costing consumers millions of dollars and sending law enforcement agencies and wireless carriers nationwide scrambling for solutions.

In San Francisco, police have gone undercover and launched a transit ad campaign, warning folks to “be smart with your smartphone.” Similar warnings went out in Oakland, where there have been nearly 1,300 cellphone robberies this year.

When Apple’s ballyhooed iPhone 5 went on sale last month, New York City police encouraged buyers to register their phone’s serial numbers with the department. That came just months after a 26-year-old chef at the Museum of Modern Art was killed for his iPhone while heading home to the Bronx.

In St. Louis, city leaders proposed an ambitious ordinance requiring anyone who resells cellphones to obtain a secondhand dealers license. Resellers also would need to record the phone’s identity number and collect detailed information including the seller’s names, addresses, a copy of their driver’s licenses — even their thumbprints.

“It will take a national solution to make this problem go away,” St. Louis Mayor Francis Slay said of the phone thefts.

Though some experts put annual cellphone losses in the billions of dollars, there is no precise figure on how many devices are stolen each year.

However, the problem has become so visible that it has caught the attention of lawmakers and regulators seeking to take the profit out of cellphone theft.

In April, U.S. Sen. Charles Schumer, D-New York, and New York City Police Commissioner Ray Kelly announced that the major U.S. cellphone carriers and the Federal Communications Commission have agreed to set up a national database to track reported stolen phones. It is scheduled to launch in late 2013.

Schumer also introduced a bill called the Mobile Device Theft Deterrence Act, which proposes a five-year prison sentence for tampering with the ID numbers of a stolen cellphone. The bill is supported by the Cellular Telecommunications Industry Association (CTIA), a Washington, D.C. advocacy group.

In addition, CTIA officials said carriers are expected to launch individual databases later this month to permanently disable a cellphone reported stolen. The initiative is similar to a successful decade-old strategy in Australia.

Previously, U.S. carriers have only been able to disable so-called SIM cards, which can be swapped in and out of phones. That’s led to a profitable black market for stolen phones.

Chris Guttman-McCabe, CTIA’s vice president of regulatory affairs, said the goal of creating theft databases is to render stolen cellphones worthless.

“We want to dry up the aftermarket,” Guttman-McCabe said. “Hopefully, there will be no sense in stealing a phone and a once valuable piece of hardware will essentially turn into useless metal.”

Right now, the incentive is to steal and that’s creating huge losses, said Kevin Mahaffey, a co-founder of Lookout, a San Francisco-based mobile security firm which has advised carriers about the national database.

“Thieves know that carrying a smartphone is like carrying $500 in your hands,” said Mahaffey. His company estimates that stolen and lost cellphones could cost American consumers more than $30 billion this year.

Many cities with highest rates of stolen and lost phones also rank among the FBI’s listing of U.S. cities with the highest crime rates, including Cleveland, Detroit, Oakland and Newark, N.J., Mahaffey said.

Meanwhile, cellphone thefts and police response continue at a frenzied pace.

In Chicago, two men were each charged with armed robbery last week after stealing an iPhone from a teen.

In Oakland, nearly three dozen people were recently arrested during a sweep for allegedly stealing smartphones. On Tuesday, police arrested a 15-year-old boy who allegedly swiped a woman’s iPhone near Oakland’s City Hall and sold it in downtown San Francisco for $200 to buy marijuana.

“It’s a quick crime of opportunity, a snatch and grab, either by foot or on bike,” Officer Johnna Watson, an Oakland police spokeswoman, said. “The thieves are gone in an instant.”

What Is Common Sense Government?

Two years ago, when I first ran for City Commission, my campaign was based on “Common Sense City Government”. I have delivered on that campaign promise.

- From 2005 thru 2010, the city had taken over 3/4 of a million dollars from the reserve account to balance the annual budget.
- In the past two years, we have balanced our annual budget, AND returned over $571,000 to that reserve account!

THAT is what I call “Common Sense Government”

U.S. economy grows at still-modest 2 percent rate

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The U.S. economy grew at a slightly faster 2 percent annual rate from July through September, buoyed by more spending by consumers and the federal government.

Even with the increase from a 1.3 percent growth rate in the April-June quarter, the economy remains too weak to rapidly boost job creation.

The report Friday from the Commerce Department is the last broad snapshot of the economy before Americans choose a president in 11 days.

Republican nominee Mitt Romney has attacked President Barack Obama's handling of the economy and has noted that growth has slowed from last year. The 1.74 percent annual growth rate for the first nine months of 2012 remains slightly behind last year's 1.8 percent growth. That, in turn, trailed 2010's growth of 2.4 percent.

Obama has argued that the economy is steadily improving. Analysts cautioned, though, that Friday's report offered few signs that economic growth is gaining momentum.

"We suspect that growth will slow a little in the fourth quarter and expect it to remain close to 2 percent next year," said Paul Ashworth, chief U.S. economist at Capital Economics.

The economy grew faster last quarter in part because consumer spending rose at a 2 percent annual rate, up from a 1.5 percent rate in the second quarter. Spending on homebuilding and renovations increased at an annual rate of more than 14 percent.

Growth was held back by the first drop in exports in more than three years and flat business investment in equipment and software. It was also slowed by the effects of the drought that struck the Midwest last summer. The drought cut agriculture stockpiles and reduced the economy's annual growth rate by nearly a half-point.

Once crop supplies return to normal, they will help boost economic growth, analysts noted.

The government's report covers gross domestic product. GDP measures the nation's total output of goods and services — from restaurant meals and haircuts to airplanes, appliances and highways.

Weak earnings weigh on stocks

Stocks closed mostly lower Friday after investors found little to like in weak corporate earnings reports and news of only tepid growth in the U.S. economy in the third quarter.

The Dow Jones industrial average managed a gain of 3.53 points to close at 13,107.21 after spending much of the day in the red.

The Standard & Poor's 500 index fell 1.03 points to 1,411.94 and the Nasdaq composite rose 1.83 points to 2,987.95.

Apple fell $5.54 to $604 after saying its profit will decline this holiday season.

Fired bank worker declines return offer

DES MOINES, Iowa — A 68-year-old Des Moines man fired from Wells Fargo Home Mortgage over a minor crime 50 years ago has stirred national interest.

Richard Eggers was fired in July when a background review sparked by new federal rules for banks revealed a 1963 conviction for putting a cardboard cutout of a dime in a laundromat's washing machine. He has since received a waiver from the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp., or FDIC, and Wells Fargo offered to rehire him.

But Eggers says he won't accept the bank's offer to return to work unless Wells Fargo changes its background check policy, which he believes discriminates against low-level workers.

Banks have fired thousands of employees like Eggers since new federal banking guidelines were enacted in May 2011. The regulatory rules forbid the employment of anyone convicted of a crime involving dishonesty, breach of trust or money laundering.

Toyota ups global sales lead over GM

DETROIT — Toyota has widened its global sales lead over General Motors because its factories have recovered from last year's earthquake.

The Japanese automaker says it sold 7.4 million vehicles around the world through September, up 28 percent from a year earlier. That's 450,000 more than General Motors, which says it sold 6.95 million cars and trucks. GM's global sales are up 2.5 percent for the first nine months.

SCHOOL from 1A

se,” but said that apparently is the public’s perception. And she noted that she did not educate her daughter at the local high school because of safety concerns.

“Where’s the safety problem?” Waller countered. Schools are locked “except for one door” manned by a receptionist, and kids are provided “positive behavior intervention support” that helps them resolve disputes in a peaceful manner, he said.

Keach was also critical of the school district in that she said it has not done as well as it could have in meeting the public’s expectations.

“I can tell you, from knocking on doors in the 5th District, that the schools are not meeting all the expectations of this community,” she said, especially not in the arenas of school safety and increasing property tax rates. “Are we getting the biggest bang for our buck?”

“I think there are some very, very positive things that are going on in our school system” but “we’ve got to do better.”

Keach said she disagrees with “the way that our money is spent. People are very concerned. I think we need to be more fiscally responsible. Extravagant buildings are not conducive to learning.”

Waller, however, pointed out “based upon standards for school buildings in the state of Kentucky, our schools have between $117 million and $120 million worth of unmet needs.” Except for the recently built early childhood learning center on Green Street, the district hasn’t put up a new building since 1990, he said, and many facilities date from the 1950s or ‘60s.

The two also debated test scores and the role they should play in the evaluation of teachers.

Waller said test scores should not be the sole criteria for judging performance, and Keach agreed to some extent. “We have to be careful in using those standardized tests in measuring performance,” she said, because “not all teachers are going to have good students.”

She said she could possibly be in favor of having students evaluate their teachers. “If you allow a classroom of 40 kids to evaluate a teacher you’re probably going to get a pretty definitive answer.”

“We already have an assessment method in place” by school principals, Waller said, and teachers are also provided days for professional development. The current system is “working real well.”

As for standardized tests, Keach said, “we have some really, really good teachers. In fact, we have some of the best teachers. There’s no reason why we cannot be the top school district. But our test scores are not reflecting that.”

Waller disputed that contention by saying the local district is rated 12th in the state and the high school is in the state’s top third.

The graduation rate is up 4 percent, he said, and test scores have improved 46 percent in math and 32 percent in reading, while scores for science, social studies and writing on demand have increased more modestly.

The entire candidate’s debate, which was led by the school board portion, can be viewed online at www.WSON-radio.com and will also be broadcast today at noon on Insight Cable Channel 12, as well as at 7 p.m. on Sunday.

STORM from 1A

As of Friday morning, federal forecasters were looking closer at the Delaware shore as the spot it will turn inland and merge with a wintry storm front. But there is a lot of room for error in the forecast and the storm could turn into shore closer to New York and New Jersey and bring the worst weather there.

Wherever Sandy comes ashore will get 10 inches of rain and extreme storm surges, Louis Uccellini, NOAA’s environmental prediction director, said in a Friday news conference. Other areas not directly on Sandy’s entry path will still get 4 to 8 inches of rain, maybe more, he said. Up to 2 feet of snow should fall on West Virginia, with lighter snow in parts of Ohio and Pennsylvania, regardless of where Sandy first hits.

A wide swath of the East, measuring several hundreds of miles, will get persistent gale-force winds in the 50 mph area, with some areas closer to storm landfall getting closer to 70 mph, said James Franklin, forecast chief for the National Hurricane Center.

“It’s going to be a long-lasting event, two to three days of impact for a lot of people,” Franklin said. “Wind damage, widespread power outages, heavy rainfall, inland flooding and somebody is going to get a significant surge event.”

That storm surge will only be magnified by the full moon this weekend to make it a “dangerous period,” Uccellini said.

Last year’s Hurricane Irene was a minimal hurricane that caused widespread damage as it moved north along the coast after making landfall in North Carolina. With catastrophic inland flooding in New Jersey, Massachusetts and Vermont, federal officials say Irene caused $15.8 billion in damage.

Sandy is “looking like a very serious storm that could be historic,” said Jeff Masters, meteorology director of the forecasting service Weather Underground. “Mother Nature is not saying, ‘Trick or treat.’ It’s just going to give tricks.”

Government forecasters said there is a 90 percent chance — up from 60 percent two days earlier — that the East will get pounded.

Utilities are lining up out-of-state work crews and canceling employees’ days off to deal with expected power outages. From county disaster chiefs to the federal government, emergency officials are warning the public to be prepared. And President Barack Obama was briefed aboard Air Force One.

Boat owners were yanking their vessels out of the water Friday at the Southside Marina in Point Pleasant Beach, N.J., about 60 miles south of New York City.

“We’re taking them out as fast as we can,” said marina employee Jim Martin.

Atlantic City’s casinos made contingency plans in case they have to close, as they did for three days last year when Tropical Storm Irene approached.

Eastern states that saw outages that lasted for days after last year’s freak Halloween snowstorm and Hurricane Irene are already pressuring power companies to be more ready this time.

HUNT from 1A

Bradley, whom she called a “wonderful awesome man.”

“I had several every emotional moments during my search,” Schmitt said. “It was a spiritual awakening.”

It was indeed a beautiful time of year to get out and enjoy the mild weather, and our other photo scavenger hunters also did great work on the “Sacred Places” hunt. Thirty-three people (including numerous children) turned in perfect answer sheets.

That’s some great hunting considering some of these sites were a little more obscure than others.

Many people did a wonderful job getting very specific with their answers for the 10 locations on our list. Jada Roland and Jonathan Roland get extra credit for the details they provided with their answers, such as providing the plate number (17) of the Audubon painting depicted in site No. 3 and the complete text of the corner plaque (“First Baptist Church, Founded 1820, Erected 1879, Stoned 1979”) partially shown in site No. 2.

The locations of the sites we picture are:

1. Immanuel Baptist Temple, 540 Second St., scripture engraving over the left side (facing) front door.
2. First Missionary Baptist Church, 20 S. Elm St., a detail of an engraving on the front of the building.
3. First United Methodist Church, 338 Third St., a detail of the mourning dove statue by sculptor Raymond Graf based on a painting by John James Audubon.

Janie Mullins Schmitt explains the process she used for creating her entry for The Gleaner’s “Sacred Places” photo scavenger hunt.

4. Holy Name of Jesus Catholic Church, 511 Second St., statue at the Adams Street entrance to the parking lot.
5. Trinity Lutheran Church, 501 N. Elm St., stepping stones around the of landscaping.
6. Christ Corner Church, 635 Center St., detail in the tile over one of the entrances.
7. St. Paul’s Episcopal Church, 5 S. Green St., detail of sign adjacent to main entrance.
8. First Baptist Church, corner of Center and Elm streets, bas relief emblem over a window.
9. Presbyterian Church of Henderson, 100 S. Main St., detail from the sign with the name of the church.

10. River of Life Church, 725 Washington St., cross at the top of the marquee.

Greg Atkison was one participant who tackled the hunt with his grandchildren, including Laura and Steven Midgett visiting from Lebanon, Tenn. (Gracie Atkison of Henderson County also went hunting with her grandfather.)

“We... had a great time,” he said. “The Scavenger Hunt and Pickin’ and Pedalin’ are two things our grandkids always look forward to doing.”

Brenda Sutton noted that it wouldn’t have been good if she had not recognized site No. 10 spot on this scavenger hunt’s list.

“I cannot miss this beautiful church,” she said. “It’s right across the street from me. It’s called ‘My Front Door Church.’”

And Mary Lou Shoulders made an observation following her time spent on the hunt.

“Henderson is blessed with a diversity of churches of all denominations,” she said.

Prizes for this hunt were provided by Henderson Area Arts Alliance, who gave tickets for the prize-winners and a guest to see the stage production of “Miracle on 34th Street” on Dec. 19 at Henderson Fine Arts Center. The play is part of the Arts Alliance’s current 19th performing arts season. All perfect entries were placed in a random drawing for prizes.

The winners are:

First place — Tammy Storey

Second place — Jada Roland

Third place — Marjorie Tapp

Other participants with perfect answers were: Sharon Woods, Janie Mullins Schmitt, Eddy Tigie, Nikki Blair, Judy Whobrey, Virgil Hammontree and his grandchildren, Jonathan Roland, Alice and Bob Friedls, Greg Atkison, Gracie Atkison, Laura Midgett, Steven Midgett, Brenda Atkison, Mike Welch, Leah Gehret, Jennifer Clary, Zachary and Jeffrey Nelson, Nancy and Jeff Horn, James Woods, Mary Lou Shoulders, Gary Shoulders, L’Pree Collins, Denise Phelps, Glenda Parker, Holli A. Colonels romp past Devils 49-21

■ Seniors go out big; team now 8-2 on year

By Kevin Patton

Scoring six touchdowns and forcing three turnovers in the first quarter alone gave Henderson County exactly the start it was looking for in Friday's 49-21 senior night win over Owensboro.

"The seniors had the mind set that this was the last time we'd get to play Owensboro," said senior running back Keileen Chappell, "and we wanted to go out with a bang."

The opening quarter certainly was explosive for the 8-2 Colonels, who had a 42-0 lead after 12 minutes of play.

"Our kids were ready to play. We had a good week of practice. Hopefully that will carry over from here on out," said Henderson County coach Clay Clevenger, whose team will start the postseason next week at home against Fern Creek.

Owensboro (6-4) turned the ball over three times in the opening period, and the Colonels scored off each of them.

Already trailing 7-0 after Chappell's 13-yard touchdown run on the opening drive, the Red Devils fumbled on their third offensive play. Tray Pulliam returned the fumble 46 yards to set up a 6-yard touchdown run by Russell Fuchs.

Owensboro fumbled a snap on a fourth-and-1 play at midfield on its next possession. Despite recovering the ball for a 15-yard loss, the Devils gave the ball over on downs and the Colonels scored on a 2-yard run by Comer.

The Colonels scored three more touchdowns in the final 2:27 of the quarter. Chappell, who finished with 218 yards on 28 carries, scored on a 25-yard run. Owensboro fumbled again on its next possession and Mason Galloway recovered it at midfield. Comer pulled the ball out on the option and ran 26 yards for the touchdown.

Jamal Hill ended the scoring blitz as he stepped in front of the intended receiver on a Nick Loucher pass, and returned the interception 31 yards.

"They had some issues with turning it over. We thought if we were aggressive, we could make them turn it over," Clevenger said. "The big thing is that we were able to capitalize on them."

Seemingly headed for a mercy-rule finish, the Colonels weren't able to close the door. Owensboro outscored the Colonels 21-7 the rest of the way.

"We lost our focus a little. That was obvious," Clevenger said.

After Owensboro cut the lead 42-14 to start the second half, Comer scored his third touchdown of the game on a 3-yard run.

The Colonels can appreciate a rare blowout win over the Red Devils. "We can cherish this. In middle school, they used to beat us like this," said

Chappell, who played at North Middle. "This is always a big rivalry, and then it's senior night too."

In addition to Chappell's second 200-yard performance of the season, the Colonels picked up 107 yards on 12 carries from Fuchs. Comer had 55 yards on seven carries. Cade Wilke suffered a stinger during the game and had only two carries. Pulliam left the game early with a sprained ankle. Two-way starter Brennan Farley didn't dress after suffering a concussion in last week's win over Muhlenberg County.

Kaeshawn Dulin totaled 87 yards on eight carries for Owensboro, which had 198 yards of offense to Henderson County's 422.

Assumption ends Lady Colonels' season

■ Nation's No. 3 squad wins three straight games

By Mitchell Stinson
Gleaner correspondent

LOUISVILLE— The nation's third-ranked team made short work of the Henderson County Lady Colonels on Friday, rolling to a 25-4, 25-8, 25-7 triumph at the state volleyball tournament. But winning coach Ron Kordes heaped praised on his over-matched opponent.

"They kept swinging, kept fighting, and they certainly had a good crowd," he said.

Enhanced by the boisterous presence of the school's soccer team, Henderson County's fan block was certainly larger and louder than Assumption's side. The Colonel soccer team dropped by Valley High School's J.C. Cantrell Gymnasium on their way to Lexington where they'll play in the state soccer tournament on Saturday.

They witnessed the end of the best volleyball season in the 10-year history of the sport at Henderson County. Despite the lop-sided result, Kordes saw why the Lady Colonels compiled the fourth best record (34-6) in Kentucky.

"I've been saying for the last couple years that the schools out in the state that started playing late are getting better every year," he said.

Meanwhile, Henderson County players and fans saw why the Assumption Rockets (38-2) are the class of Kentucky and one of the top teams in America. Six-foot-3 Taylor Paulson was devastating in the middle, pounding 10 kills before taking the third game off. High-flying Alyssa Cavanaugh slammed five kills from outside angles and Sabrina Schleuger came off the bench to deliver seven.

"They ran a quick offense. I don't think we were prepared for that" said Henderson County junior Katelyn McMillan. "But their shots went straight down. We couldn't stop them."

It didn't matter much who took the swings. Invariably, some Rocket girl would receive a pinpoint set and pound a winner.

"I think they attacked it every time they had possession, and that's impressive for a high school team," Lady Colonels coach Mary Howard said.

Howard's girls had their moments, however. After a tense start, they settled into an offense and gave it all they had. Delivering five kills and one block, six-foot tall Alisha McBride showed she could play with the big girls at the net. She also had some deflections and hard spikes that didn't show up on the stat sheet.

"I thought she rose to the occasion and came out aggressive and attacked them," Howard said.

Other moments of excellence included a cross-court kill by Jessica Cannon, a tape-tickling ace from Meredith Proctor and a powerful, back-line kill by Shelby O'Nan.

"The fact we were able to make and make some good plays against them is a bright spot for the future," Howard said.

O'Nan is the team's lone senior, so everybody should be back for another run at state in 2013. Maybe they won't get such a terrible draw next time.

"We knew they were a hard team so we just wanted to have fun," O'Nan said.

Soccer Cols face Pikeville in quarterfinals

By Mitchell Stinson
Gleaner correspondent

The Pikeville Panthers are a bit of a mystery to coach Benson Pryor and his Henderson County Colonels soccer team.

It's a mystery they'll try to solve this afternoon in Lexington when the two teams square off in an Elite Eight state tournament showdown.

Traveling down from the hills of southeastern Kentucky, the Panthers will bring a 14-3-1 record with them. They were the class of Region 15, which consists of only six teams, and advanced to the state quarterfinals with a 3-1 victory over 16th Region champ Greenup County.

"They have a real good record (and) they played some teams in northern Kentucky," Pryor said. "I'm sure they put together the most challenging schedule they could considering (their) location and travel time."

With a total of 59 goals, Pikeville is certainly not as explosive as Henderson County postseason opponents such as Hopkinsville and Trigg County. Those two squads scored 104 and 98, respectively. The Panthers defense seems sound, however, with only 18 goals surrendered. That's three less than the Colonels, though it was achieved in six fewer games.

Pryor isn't too worried about the lack of a thorough scouting report. "We're more focused on our end," he said, "on being efficient, clean and positive on our end."

The Colonels are clicking at both ends of the field, but their defense is particularly effective. They've blanked opponents in four of five postseason contests and are one goose egg away from tying the school record (13) for single-season shutouts.

That mark was set last year during Henderson County's run to the Final Four. With a victory on Saturday, it'll be two Final Fours in a row.

Pikeville has never been there before. This season marked the first time the program ever won a regional. By contrast, the Colonels upperclassmen are playoff veterans who have won three regionals in the last four years.

The Colonels will begin unraveling the Pikeville mystery at 2 p.m. Central time at Henry Clay High School in Lexington. A victory would bring them back to Lexington Thursday for Final Four action at Paul Laurence Dunbar High School against the winner of today's 6 p.m. game between Dunbar and Bowling Green.

Johnson wins Martinsville pole

MARTINSVILLE, Va. — Jimmie Johnson's championship hopes got a boost Friday when he won the pole position for Sunday's NASCAR Sprint Cup race at Martinsville Speedway while points leader Brad Keselowski qualified 32nd.

Johnson, a five-time champion, gained not only the top starting spot, but the stall at the front of pit road, giving him unimpeded access to the track.

He trails Keselowski by seven points with four races remaining. Denny Hamlin, who is third in the points race and 13 behind Johnson, will start fifth.

Brian Vickers earned the outside starting spot on the front row, with Kyle Busch third and Jeff Burton in the second row.

Johnson says he will be cautious. He started 22nd at the track in the spring and nearly won, so he knows it can be done.

NHL cancels games through November

NEW YORK — The NHL lockout has forced the cancellation of all games through the end of November.

The NHL announced Friday that 326 regular-season games from Oct. 11 through Nov. 30 were lost — more than 26.5 percent of the schedule. The news came one day after a league-imposed deadline passed for a deal with the players' association that would allow for a full season.

Pagano scheduled for more chemo

INDIANAPOLIS—Colts coach Chuck Pagano is ready for his second round of chemotherapy and probably will not return to the team until he completes it.

Interim coach Bruce Arians says doctors are trying to keep Pagano in as sterile environment as possible to prevent the risk of infection.

Pagano was hospitalized Sept. 26 after he was diagnosed with leukemia. He was released from the hospital Sunday and is continuing treatment at home.

Redmond eyes Marlins' job

MIAMI — Now that he has followed Jim Leyland's advice, Mike Redmond believes he ready to manage in the major leagues.

The former catcher had his first interview for a big-league job this week when he met with Miami Marlins officials in New York City.

Redmond spent the past two years managing Class A teams in the Toronto Blue Jays' system.

"Jim Leyland told me a long time ago when I was getting ready to retire, 'If you want to manage in the majors, you've got to go get some experience,'" Redmond said Friday from his home in Spokane, Wash. "I took that to heart and went out and took a job with the Blue Jays in A ball and got down to the grass roots, where you've got to teach and develop.

"I've learned a lot. I had a lot of great kids, and to see them improve is very satisfying. On top of that, we went to the playoffs both times. That was fun, too."

Saul Smith keeps job after DUI arrest

MINNEAPOLIS—Minnesota assistant Saul Smith will keep his job and return to the team next month after a drunken-driving arrest that put him on unpaid leave for the last five days.

Athletic director Norwood Teague said Smith returned to the payroll Friday, but the son of coach Tubby Smith will remain on administrative leave until Nov. 13. That means he will miss two exhibition games and two regular season games for the Gophers.

Vogelsong took long journey to Series

By Antonio Gonzalez
Associated Press

SAN FRANCISCO — Ryan Vogelsong stood on the cut grass at AT&T Park in his crisp San Francisco Giants uniform, giving an interview for Japanese broadcaster NHK in English. No need for an interpreter.

The backdrop on the scoreboard said it all: World Series.

Halfway around the world and back, Vogelsong's journey is ready to go global. The resilient right-hander will start Game 3 in Detroit opposite Anibal Sanchez tonight looking to pitch the Giants one win away from another championship and cap a comeback that has become more improbable each time out.

"A lot of faith. A lot of hard work," said Vogelsong, who will take the mound with San Francisco ahead 2-0 in the best-of-seven series. "You also have to have some things go your way to get opportunities."

For so many years, they so often didn't.

Vogelsong was drafted in the fifth round by the Giants in 1998 and became the primary piece of a trade to get future ace Jason Schmidt from the Pittsburgh Pirates in 2001. The promising prospect later underwent elbow ligament replacement surgery, failed in the big leagues, bounced out of the minors, had mixed results in Japan, then struggled with the Phillies' and Angels' minor-league affiliates and at age 33 figured his career might be over.

One last chance came a year ago from the most unlikely team: the defending World Series champion Giants.

Vogelsong, now 35, didn't make the club out of spring training. He went back to riding buses and staying in motels for Triple-A Fresno, not an easy decision with his wife, Nicole, and son, Ryder, then 20 months old, left to share the burden.

While Vogelsong was sitting in the stands at a game in Las Vegas charting pitches between starts, his manager asked for his cell phone number. Barry Zito had been placed on the disabled list with a sprained right foot and the Giants were looking for a replacement.

Sure enough, just before Vogelsong boarded the bus, his phone rang. Giants Vice President Bobby Evans was on the other end with news that set Vogelsong on a path to this World Series: he was heading back to the big leagues to make a fill-in start for San Francisco against — who else? — the Pirates.

He held the Pirates to four hits and two runs in 5 2-3 innings for his first major league victory in almost five years.

"I just believe that God had a plan for me this whole time," Vogelsong said. "I feel like all the stuff that I went through — going to Japan and going to winter ball at 33 years old, and getting back here last year, is stuff that He was doing for me to get me prepared for this moment."

Now Vogelsong is living in one of America's most scenic cities amid a reshaped reality.

No more eating fish guts as he did to bond with Japanese teammates. Instead, he's spraying sparkling wine from Napa Valley with the rest of his Giants teammates after every series victory.

The minors are long behind him, and so is the silence at the end of some starts in Japan. The San Francisco sunsets have held some of his most shining moments, with fans chanting "Vogey! Vogey!" louder than they ever had in his Game 6 victory in the NL championship series against St. Louis starting in the California twilight.

"He pitches with conviction," reliever Jeremy Affeldt said.

Manager's toughest call: When to sit a slumping star

By Ronald Blum
Associated Press

SAN FRANCISCO — Pete Rose sat in the World Series. So did Reggie Jackson, Barry Zito and Paul O'Neill. Tim Lincecum lost his spot in the San Francisco Giants' rotation this October, and Jose Valverde forfeited his role as the Detroit Tigers' closer.

Finessing slumping stars with enormous egos and prodigious paychecks is part of a major league manager's mandate, and sensitive situations can turn radioactive come October.

"It's one of your most difficult things you have to do as a manager, particularly when you're talking to a star player," Giants manager Bruce Bochy said, "and you have to tell him that you're going to go another way as far as the postseason."

Yankees manager Joe Girardi set off storm when he parked Alex Rodriguez for three playoff games this October and pinch hit for him in three others.

"Any time I'm in any lineup, I think that lineup is better and has a better chance to win," said the $275 million man, baseball's highest-paid player. "Any time I'm in the box, the game can change, and everyone knows that."

But a string of strikeouts earned A-Rod his own private brig on the bench.

Lincecum, a two-time Cy Young Award winner for the Giants, won the Series opener and the Game 5 clincher against Texas two years ago.

Dropped as a Series starter this year following a 10-15 regular season, he came out of the bullpen in Game 1 and retired seven straight batters, striking out five.

"A different vantage, a different kind of feeling," he said of his `pen appearances this October, "a whole different experience for me."

A World Series benching that brought a particularly resentful response came in 1983. Then 42, Rose had started 31 consecutive World Series games before Philadelphia manager Paul Owens banished him against Baltimore ace Jim Palmer in Game 3.

Tony Perez, Rose's 41-year-old replacement, went 1 for 4, and the Orioles overcame a two-run deficit for a 3-2 win that gave them a Series lead en route to a five-game victory.

"I'm hurt and embarrassed," said Rose, who went on to become baseball's hits king. "There are 65,000 people in this stadium tonight, and the two most surprised and astounded people are Pete Rose and Tony Perez. I didn't think that's the way baseball should be played."

Yankees manager Joe Torre removed four-time All-Star Chuck Knoblauch for Games 4 and 5 of the 2001 World Series after an 0 for 12 start, put him back in the lineup for a night and then took him out again for Game 7.

"I'm just fiddling with it to see if we can stimulate some offense here," Torre said.

He also sat five-time All-Star Paul O'Neill against Curt Schilling in the opener and O'Neill was joined by two-time All-Star Tino Martinez in the dugout for Game 2 as Torre went with eight right-handed hitters plus Andy Pettitte against Randy Johnson.

Torre's moves didn't work. Johnson pitched a three-hit shutout to give Arizona a 2-0 Series lead. He restored Martinez for Game 6 but not O'Neill, and Arizona won 15-2 to force a Game 7.

"I liked the days when I didn't have to look at the lineup," O'Neill said.

In 1981, Reggie Jackson missed the final game of the AL championship series and the first two games of the World Series because of an injured calf. He said he could play in Game 3, but manager Bob Lemon held him out against Los Angeles Dodgers rookie sensation Fernando Valenzuela.

"The best left-hander in the National League was pitching against us," Lemon said, "and Reggie hasn't been at bat in quite awhile. It wasn't fair to him, and it wasn't fair to us."

New York lost 5-4 that night and the Dodgers won the Series in six games. Jackson, in his final year with the Yankees, returned the following night and went 4 for 12 with an RBI over the rest of the Series.

Zito, a Cy Young Award winner with a $126 million contract, was dropped by Bochy from San Francisco's postseason rosters in 2002.

"The way he handled it was so impressive," Bochy said. "I think he threw a bullpen that day and throughout the postseason he kept himself ready in case something happened. He didn't hang his head and he even threw to hitters. He said, 'I'll keep myself ready. If you need me, I'll be ready.'"

And the manager maintained Zito's respect.

"He's always communicated," the pitcher said. "Sometimes the truth was not what I wanted to hear, but it was the truth."

UCLA's new Pauley Pavilion ready to reopen

The Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — Something old is nearly new again at UCLA.

Pauley Pavilion — where Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, Bill Walton, Reggie Miller and Kevin Love starred and John Wooden coached for 10 years — has gotten a major face-lift.

In a city where appearance is everything, the 47-year-old arena is ready for its close-up.

The Bruins honor their championship past and address the future in the $132 million renovation to be unveiled on Nov. 9 when they host Indiana State in their men's basketball season opener.

After spending last season on the road, splitting home games between the aging Los Angeles Sports Arena and Honda Center in Anaheim, coach Ben Howland is thrilled to be back on campus.

"It is like a brand new building," he said. "It's going to be great for the next 50 years."

Construction began as UCLA was wrapping up its basketball season in March 2010 and the arena closed the following spring.

Capacity was increased by 1,000 seats to 13,800, with just under 10,000 season tickets sold for men's basketball. Unlike the windowless original design, the new exterior is mostly glass.

Earnhardt glad he took time off following concussions

By Hank Kurz Jr.
Associated Press

MARTINSVILLE, Va. — Dale Earnhardt Jr. disliked the attention caused by his concussions and nearly three-week departure from NASCAR, but said Friday he returns to racing glad he took steps to make sure he is OK.

NASCAR's most popular driver, who had a hard crash at Talladega on Oct. 7 that left him with headaches and his second concussion in six weeks, is returning at Martinsville Speedway this weekend.

He was examined and cleared to return by neurosurgeon and NASCAR consultant Dr. Jerry Petty on Tuesday, one day after Earnhardt ran 123 laps during a test at half-mile Gresham Motorsports Park in Jefferson, Ga.

"I'm glad I did what I did. I'm glad I took the time off and made the choices that I made," Earnhardt said of the decision to seek medical help that sidelined him and squashed his already slender championship hopes.

"I had to do it. I didn't have a choice. I knew something wasn't right."

Earnhardt missed races at Charlotte and Kansas, and said it was initially frightening to know something was amiss in his head.

"Some concussions are

really bad, and I don't care how tough you think you are, when your mind is not working the way it is supposed to, it scares the (expletive) out of you," he said. "You are not going to think about race cars. You aren't going to think about trophies. You're not going to think about your job. You're going to be thinking about what do I got to do to get my brain working the way it was before.

"That's going to jump right to the top of the priority list, I promise you."

What Is Common Sense Government?

Two years ago, when I first ran for City Commission, my campaign was based on “Common Sense City Government”. I have delivered on that campaign promise.

- From 2005 thru 2010, the city had taken over 3/4 of a million dollars from the reserve account to balance the annual budget.
- In the past two years, we have balanced our annual budget, AND returned over $571,000 to that reserve account!

THAT is what I call “Common Sense Government”

UK could provide Missouri's first SEC win

By R.B. Fallstrom
Associated Press

COLUMBIA, Mo. — Off to a somewhat demoralizing start in its inaugural SEC season, Missouri really needed a break.

A week off helped rid the aftertaste of a 32-point loss at home to top-ranked Alabama and the Tigers (3-4, 0-4 SEC) could be finally getting a bit of a breather in the schedule. Even without quarterback James Franklin, sidelined by a sprained left knee, they are two-touchdown favorites to beat Kentucky today and finally secure victory No. 1 in their new conference.

"I feel like the team is amped up to get the season turned around a little bit," wide receiver Marcus Lucas said. "We're all playmakers, and we all have the ability to change games. That's all we have to focus on."

The Wildcats (1-7, 0-5 SEC) have lost six in a row, although last week they lost by just five points at home to No. 12 Georgia. Coach Joker Phillips said he hasn't seen a drop in enthusiasm, likely because the team is so young.

There are 14 freshmen playing, among the most in the nation, and out of 80 recruited scholarship players 55 are freshmen or sophomores. In the secondary that surrendered 427 yards passing against Georgia, Kentucky has a senior, sophomore and six freshmen on the two-deep chart.

"I think a lot of it has to do with a lot of freshmen starting," Phillips said. "The guys came here to play, that's what we sold them, and that brings enthusiasm."

Besides the youth, Kentucky is minus many of its skill position players.

"It's created a lot of challenges for us," Phillips said. "When you don't have your best two runners and your best quarterback, it makes it really, really tough."

Increasing the degree of difficulty, Missouri is the third school in four games on the schedule that didn't play the previous week. And the Wildcats have been shaky on the road, getting outscored 119-21 by Louisville, Florida and Arkansas.

A potential plus would be the return of quarterback Patrick Towles from a high ankle sprain and he could rotate with Jalen Whitlow.

Missouri redshirt freshman quarterback Corbin Berkstresser has been operating behind a patchwork line, and the Tigers were held to minus-3 yards rushing against Alabama. Coach Gary Pinkel and players both looked at the bye week as an opportunity to start fresh in search of an eighth straight bowl bid.

Besides the Alabama rout, the Tigers lost by 21 points to South Carolina and Georgia, and were upset at home earlier this month by Vanderbilt.

'Kentuckiana' teams top preseason poll

■ Indiana, Louisville, Kentucky ranked one-two-three in AP poll

By Jim O'Connell
Associated Press

Tom Crean didn't look like any of the other people in the Maui airport that day.

He had just coached his third, fourth and fifth games in his first season at Indiana. He looked how you would expect a coach to look after losing games by 38 and 26 points, then managing to beat Division II Chaminade in the seventh-place game of the Maui Invitational by only two points. The Silver-swords got off a possible game-winning 3-point attempt at the buzzer.

Others waiting for flights to the mainland on the day before Thanksgiving in 2008 were wearing leis and flowered shirts and were carefully carrying pineapples. Not Crean. He had a lot of things on his mind and looked like he was ready to blow the whistle and start practice. "This is going to take a while," Crean said at the time. "We can do it. This place has so much in so many ways."

He was standing and pacing now, the way he piles up the miles on the sideline.

"We can do this," he said. "We can do this."

Not many people would have believed it then. They do now. Another step in the return of the fabled Hoosiers program came Friday as Crean is about to start his fifth season in Bloomington.

Indiana was ranked No. 1 in The Associated Press' preseason Top 25, a first for the Hoosiers since 1979-80, when they were coached by Bob Knight and the 3-point line was still in the experimental phase.

The Hoosiers and their fans are quite familiar with the next two teams in the voting: Louisville and Kentucky.

The three schools are from the basketball-rabid area known as "Kentuckiana." Nos. 1, 2 and 3 are all within an easy drive of each other and they are schools which have known basketball success over the years and recently, as well.

The Hoosiers, who return all five starters including 7-foot sophomore Cody Zeller, received 43 first-place votes from the 65-member national media panel. Indiana is a preseason No. 1 for the third time.

Louisville, which reached the Final Four last season, and Kentucky, the reigning national champions who beat Indiana in the regional semifinals and Louisville in the national semifinals, received the rest of the first-place votes. Louisville was No. 1 on 20 ballots and the Wildcats got the other two.

Louisville has most of the team back from last season including Gorgui Dieng, a defensive force in the middle. Kentucky, on the other hand, has another roster full of talented freshmen after four players left early and were taken in the first round of the NBA draft including overall No. 1 and 2 picks Anthony Davis and Michael Kidd-Gilchrist.

This is the fifth time that Indiana, Louisville and Kentucky were all ranked in the preseason top 10. The last time was 1983 when Kentucky was No. 4, Louisville No. 8 and Kentucky No. 9.

Indiana's other preseason No. 1 was in 1975-76 when the Hoosiers put together the last unbeaten run to a national championship.

Ohio State and Michigan joined Indiana as Big

Tom Crean

Ten teams ranked in the top five. The last time a conference had three teams in the preseason top five was 2008-09 when Connecticut, Louisville and Pittsburgh of the Big East were second, third and fifth, respectively.

North Carolina State, Kansas, Duke, Syracuse and Florida round out the top 10.

North Carolina led the second 10 and was followed by Arizona, UCLA, Michigan State, Missouri, Creighton, Memphis, UNLV, Baylor and San Diego State.

The last five ranked teams were Gonzaga, Notre Dame, Wisconsin, Cincinnati and Florida State.

The Big Ten led the way with five teams in the preseason poll, while the Big East and Atlantic Coast Conference had four each. Along with the Southeastern Conference's three teams, those four leagues accounted for 16 of the 25 teams.

Crean took over an Indiana program in 2008-09 that had plenty of history — five national championships — and a lot of current problems.

Only two players returned from a team that was facing NCAA discipline over a phone call scandal that led to the ouster of coach Kelvin Sampson.

The program was back on the national scene last season when Christian Watford's 3-pointer at the buzzer beat No. 1 Kentucky and the fans rushed the court at Assembly Hall. Three straight losing seasons seemed long ago as the Hoosiers added two more wins over teams ranked in the top five and got back in the NCAA tournament.

Now Crean has a team that will start the season No. 1

"It's great. Those things are great," Crean said. "I think now, it's just so much about the daily challenge of getting better. That to me is what the focus is. It's a big deal, but you don't get any banners for your preseason rankings. You've got to go out and you've got to earn it every day. I think that's what this team is really doing a good job of, and I know it's early, but they're doing a good job of it."

Duke has the longest current streak of consecutive poll appearances at 97, a run that started with the preseason poll of 2007-08. Kansas has the second-longest current run at 65 weeks.

Garrigus leads halfway through CIMB; Tiger in fifth place

By John Pye
Associated Press

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia — Five strokes off the lead after two rounds, Tiger Woods thinks the CIMB Classic course "can be had" and still expects a total of better than 20 under to win it.

Robert Garrigus, the second-round leader by two strokes over South Africa's Jbe Kruger, has upped the ante. With back-to-back rounds of 64 and a 14-under total of 128, he's looking to go 10 strokes beyond Woods' projection to win the tournament.

"I'm going to try to get to 30 if I can," he said, explaining that in his first tournament of the year he was 6 over after eight holes and played the next 54 at 32-under par. "So I can do it. I just need to do it on the weekend when it counts."

"I feel like if I'm putting well, no disrespect to anybody on the PGA Tour, they're all great players, but I feel like I can beat anybody in the world."

Garrigus' 128 is his lowest ever 36-hole total on the U.S. tour, improving on the 130 he had when he finished second at this year's Canadian Open. The American has one tour title, in 2010, but has six runner-up finishes including three this season. A win here won't officially count on the PGA Tour.

There's no reason he can't beat Woods, who was upstaged by playing partner Kruger on Friday on the par-71 Mines Resort and Golf Club course.

Kruger had 64 in his second round and was 12 under, two shots clear of Australia's Greg Chalmers (69) and overnight leader Troy Matteson, who followed his opening 63 with 69.

Car Accident?

HENDERSON, KY - A new free report has recently been released that reveals information every car accident victim should have before they speak to anyone. Research shows that even a "fender bender" can cause pain, headaches, even arthritis. Many car accident victims worry more about their car than they do their rights. If you have been involved in an auto accident listen to the 24 hour toll-free recorded message by calling 1-800-454-3960. The call is FREE and so is the report.

WHAT DOES THE BIBLE SAY:

By Gary Puryear

"SAINTHOOD"

Laying aside any preconceived ideas please join me as we study what the scripture says about becoming a saint. The word "saint (s)" appears about 100 times in the scripture. Of that number we find it 61 times in the New Testament translated from one Greek word meaning "dedicated, set apart, sacred, holy." In fact the same Greek word appears many times in the New Testament translated "holy". How does one become a saint? The inspired writers clearly show that those who had become Christians were saints. In Acts 9:13 Ananias responded to the Lord's command for him to go to Saul by saying, "I have heard by many of this man, how much evil he hath done to thy saints at Jerusalem". Saul of Tarsus had been persecuting Christians (Acts 9:1-2). Several times the inspired writers in addressing the church refers to them as "saints" (Ephesians 1:1; 2:19; Philippians 1:1; Colossians 1:2). A qualification for a widow that was to be supported by the church was that she had washed the saint's feet. Later the Apostle Peter referred to Christians as a "holy priesthood" and a "holy nation" (1 Peter 2:5,9). The same word for saint is here translated holy. It is clear from the New Testament that people were not made saints after death but rather became saints when they were converted. If a person is not a saint when they die they will never be one. No person on earth can make a person a saint. Only God can set us apart as holy and He only does that for those who obey Him.

Advice

Time will heal wounds for heartbroken 17-year-old

Dear Amy: I'm only 17, and I don't know how, but I fell in love with a guy when I was 16.

He was the only person I have ever truly loved, and we were together for 1 year and 10 months.

We are no longer together, and I think it's because I didn't want to have sex with him.

What am I to do? I still love him, but he has another girlfriend, and it hurts to see that she makes him happy and that he doesn't miss me the way I miss him.

His mother is also harassing me, and she says things to me that a grown woman shouldn't say to a 17-year-old.

I want to move on and find someone who will

AMY DICKINSON
COLUMNIST

love me no matter what, but my heart won't let me.

— Sad and Alone

Dear Sad: I wish I could wave my magic Amy wand and make all of this immediately better, but I can't.

So I'm going to offer you a visual cue that you should return to when you're feeling low.

I want you to find the biggest and most old-fashioned clock you can find.

Look at its beautiful face, and tell yourself, "Time will heal me."

In addition to letting time do its magic, here are some concrete things you can do: Stay away from people who put you down. Ignore, block or run from these people, if you have to.

Substitute the search for love with the search for friendship.

The affection and fellowship of a true friend will make you feel beautiful, smart and strong.

Your sweetness, strength and core values will draw people toward you who appreciate these qualities.

Somewhere in the crush of people who will be drawn to you over time is the one you will love next. And he will love you back.

Dear Amy: You are right to suggest that "Concerned," whose son cries when she leaves him at school, might be helping to create the situation.

Years ago, I used to baby-sit regularly for a friend.

She had a 5-year-old and a 9-month-old baby. The younger child cried every time she got ready to leave, and she made it worse by hanging around and acting upset instead of just leaving.

Then one day when I came in and started playing with him right away, he didn't notice when she left.

You should have seen her face!

It was clear that the separation was much more traumatic for her than for him. Concerned should realize that her son probably stops crying fairly soon after she leaves, when he gets involved in doing something with the teacher or the other kids.

— Kay

Dear Kay: Thank you for your insight. I was guilty of creating a similar dynamic when dropping off my daughter at school. When I stopped being overly concerned, she stopped being so upset. It's "parent-math." The parent instills confidence in the child by faking confidence herself.

White iodine can truly work wonders on weak, damaged fingernails

Dear Heloise: My nails tend to peel and crack, but I don't want to get artificial nails, which might make my nail beds more brittle than they already are.

I'd like healthy nails. What can I do?

— Cait E. in Philadelphia

Dear Cait: This is a classic Heloise Hint that has left many with beautiful, strong nails.

Treat them with white (otherwise known as colorless or decolorized) iodine.

Before running out to a big chain drugstore, call around, especially to local or independent pharmacies, and ask the pharmacist if the store has iodine available.

It may be kept behind the counter in some states, or your pharmacist may be able to order it for you if you ask.

If all else fails, check online.

To treat damaged nails, use a cotton swab or a nail-polish brush (cleaned thoroughly with nail-polish remover) to spread colorless iodine on just the tips of your nails.

After doing this daily for one week, begin to use the iodine only once a week.

Continue until you see that your nails are getting stronger.

While using white iodine, do not use hydrogen peroxide or any products that contain hydrogen peroxide, or you will end up with yellow or orange fingertips.

Remember, when cleaning up around the house, use rubber gloves to protect your hands and nails.

— Heloise

Dear Heloise: To keep tongs from getting tangled in my utensil drawer, I cut a paper-towel tube the right length and slide the tongs inside.

— Jonna C. in Houston

Dear Jonna: Great hint! Tongs are handy for turning meatballs when cooking.

Don't have a meatball recipe?

Try my Heloise's Spicy Swedish Meatballs — they are delicious.

To receive a copy of this and other Heloise favorites, like Shrimp Dijon and Southwestern Veggie Rice, simply send $3 and a long, self-addressed, stamped (65 cents) envelope to: Heloise/Main Dishes, P.O. Box 795001, San Antonio, TX 78279-5001.

Make an extra batch of meatballs and freeze them in a lined egg carton.

Nexium, Plavix should not be taken at same time

Dear Drs. Donohue and Roach: I am a 78-year-old who had a triple heart bypass 12 years ago and an angioplasty six years ago. For all those years, I took Plavix, and two years ago, my doctor put me on regular aspirin.

In January, I developed some stomach problems, and a CT scan showed blood clots in my lungs. Now I have to take warfarin (Coumadin).

I thought aspirin and Plavix are supposed to thin your blood, so how is it possible to develop blood clots? I also take Nexium.

— H.S.

Dear H.S.: Blood's ability to clot is essential to our survival, and our system to do so is very powerful and finely adapted. However, overzealous blood clotting can be a problem.

Blood clots are the immediate cause of heart attacks for most people, and the major reason for strokes. Both aspirin and Plavix work on one blood-clotting system: the platelets (a blood cell that stops bleeding rapidly); meanwhile, warfarin acts on the other system: the blood-clotting factors (proteins in your blood that make a mature, firm clot).

With too little medicine, you clot; too much, you bleed. In people at higher risk for clotting, it can be impossible for even the best doctors to get the balance just right.

However, you should not mix Nexium and Plavix, since the Nexium keeps the Plavix from working.

If you're prescribed both, talk to your doctor right away about changing medicines.

Horoscope

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY:

(Oct. 27). You'll have much to be proud of. Your astute observations will be instrumental to an improvement that affects many people before the end of the year. Seek quality entertainment and company in November. December brings romance. You'll shift to new interests and studies in March and will also change your appearance. Aries and Leo people adore you. Your lucky numbers are: 40, 2, 38, 14 and 39

ARIES: (March 21-April 19). Entertaining wild ideas is similar to entertaining wild animals — and every bit as dangerous. You'll chase one such ferocious notion today and wind up trying to scare it back with a stick.

TAURUS: (April 20-May 20). There is some very unglamorous work that needs doing, and unfortunately, the responsibility is all yours. Try taking it in 10-minute chunks. If you only spend 10 minutes every hour for six hours, it will nearly be finished.

GEMINI: (May 21-June 21). Brevity may be the soul of wit, but today it's also at the heart of misunderstandings. Better to overstate yourself than to shortchange discourse by leaving too much information out.

CANCER: (June 22-July 22). It feels like you're the creator of your own show and the other actors are reading directly from the script you wrote for them — except when they go "off script." But you can improvise with the best of them.

LEO: (July 23-Aug. 22). You love the people who make you laugh, but you don't always like all of their jokes. Crossing the line is always a danger with humor, especially if said humor is a bit on the dark side.

VIRGO: (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). Trying to keep a schedule will seem difficult and possibly even fruitless. Still, you're better off for the attempt to organize your efforts. Avoid trying to organize others, though. They will likely resent any efforts to control them.

LIBRA: (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). You've let go of petty grievances, and now there's room for more sunshine to stream in. You deserve good things to happen. Pleasant and harmonious hours stretch before you.

SCORPIO: (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). With the sun now full steam ahead in your sign, you are an unstoppable force of nature. Yes, your task list is lengthy. But the more you have to do today the more you'll get done.

SAGITTARIUS: (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). There's no major conflict in your foreseeable future, except perhaps between warring factions of your own belief system. This touch of cognitive dissonance makes the day more interesting.

CAPRICORN: (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). You're the most committed person you know right now, especially concerning your commitment to fun. Your play today deserves at least as much attention as your work did yesterday.

AQUARIUS: (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). Rationalizations are a normal part of human brain function, designed to ease the anxiety caused by ideas that don't mesh well in the mind. However, you are not interested in excuses. You'd rather get comfortable with the truth.

PISCES: (Feb. 19-March 20). You may have an entirely valid complaint, and yet expressing it will only put a damper on the group dynamic. Consider presenting this grievance in the form of a solution.

Religion

Jesus Christ only place we will ever find true, lasting peace

People search for peace and can't find it. They look for it in a bottle or in a pill, but it is short-lived and provides temporary relief.

They think they might find it by getting out of a bad relationship and jumping into another one. They think they can find it by running away from all their troubles, moving away and starting over.

The truth is that these avenues people may take to find true and lasting tranquility all turn into dead ends.

Instead of finding this highly prized and coveted state of mind and heart, they end up searching even more than ever.

It seems that everywhere you look these days you find turmoil and chaos.

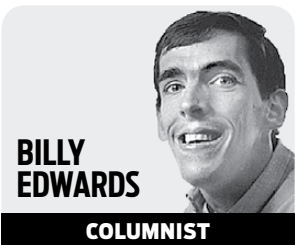

There is trouble and unrest on every hand. People try endlessly to find meaning and purpose for their lives, but they are turning up empty.

One of my favorite scriptures in the whole Bible is Isaiah 26:3, which says, "You will keep him in perfect peace whose mind is stayed on You." If our minds and hearts are centered on Him, He will keep us in perfect harmony and serenity.

Our thoughts sometimes drift as they did when Peter grew anxious when he saw the waves as the waters began to grow fierce and he allowed himself to focus on what was going on around him.

The same is true with us. It is easy to become distracted with all the cares of life and take our minds off of what truly matters.

When we do this, we are headed for trouble. We should be focused on the one who has all power to deliver us from every care that confronts us and gives us the understanding that He is with us no matter what comes our way.

BILLY EDWARDS

I believe the Lord wants us to get the most out of this life which He has blessed us with, but we can't do this if we are constantly worrying over the things we have no control.

Jesus said, "Let not your heart be troubled, neither let it be afraid." Although these words were first spoken 2,000 years ago, they still ring just as true today as they were then.

You may ask, "How can you be so sure? How can you know that these words are so true and they are not just myths?"

Because it is the Word of God and it shall stand forever.

Jesus said in Matthew 5:18, "For verily I say unto you, till heaven and earth pass, one jot or title shall in no wise pass from the law, till all be fulfilled."

In numerous places in the Gospels, Jesus said, "Heaven and earth shall pass away, but my words shall not pass away."

Jesus was much more than a great teacher or prophet. He was, is and always will be God.

He is the external one. He is the One which had no beginning and will have no end.

He chose to take on Himself the form of a man and lived in human flesh for 33 years. He lived His life as any other man.

He experienced human existence just like we all do. He had the same needs and desires as any other human, but He lived a perfect life.

You may wonder, "How could Christ be fully man and live above sin. After all, doesn't the Bible say, "For all have sinned and come short of the glory of God?"

Yes it does, but Christ was no ordinary man. While He was fully man, He was all God.

How could He be God and man at the same time? He was not conceived through the traditional means.

When it was revealed to Mary that she would become the human mother of the Lord Jesus Christ, she was perplexed, to say the least.

She asked the logical question that any woman would ask, "How shall this be, seeing I have never been with a man?"

The angel answered her by saying, "The Holy Ghost shall come upon you, and the power of the highest shall overshadow you: therefore that holy thing which shall be born of you shall be called the Son of God" (Luke 1:34-36).

Some 700 years before His birth, God gave Isaiah a word of wisdom, saying, "For unto us a child is born, unto us a child is given: and the government shall be upon his shoulder: and his name shall be called Wonderful, Counselor, the mighty God, the everlasting Father, the Prince of Peace" (9:6).

All these things can be found only in the one that we know as our Lord and Savior, Jesus Christ.

While we all live in an imperfect world and suffer many injustices due to the power of sin, we can know His peace which passes all understanding.

By opening your heart to Him, placing your trust in Him as your personal Lord and Savior, you can have new life and hope in Him.

Until next week — God bless.

Silent for now

■ Historic church's bells being repaired for its 250th anniversary

The Associated Press

ST. MARTINVILLE, La. — For the first time in a century and a half, the bells of St. Martin de Tours Catholic Church are not chiming out quarter-hours or ringing people to Mass. The bell tower is empty.

The oldest bell is cracked, one of the newest needs retuning and the tower is being re-roofed, repaired and reinforced as part of renovations planned before the church's 250th anniversary in 2015.

The work should take about six weeks, said Phil Borel of Loreauville, one of a few certified bell technicians in the country.

The church, founded in 1765, has no plans to use amplified recordings while that goes on.

"We're going to be silent until we get the bells back," said the Rev. Rusty P. Richard.

Seven bells dating from 1850, 1904 and 1977 had just been removed from their stands, rolled on pipes to a small platform cantilevered onto the bell tower, and lowered by crane to a flatbed truck.

St. Martin's, one of Louisiana's oldest churches, is known as the Mother Church of Acadiana and as the place where many believe the original heroine of Longfellow's "Evangeline" is buried, though no historical record has ever been found to back the claim.

The monument is a statue of Delores Del Rio as Evangeline, made after her 1929 movie was filmed in St. Martinville.

Prayerful search

■ Man tracks down all 11 chapels from Army camp

The Associated Press

SWEETHOME, Ore. — During World War II, more than 100,000 GIs passed through an Army camp in Oregon's Willamette Valley on their way to postings in North Africa, western Europe and the Philippines. Before they shipped out, many of those soldiers said a prayer in one of the camp's 11 military chapels.

After the war, most of Camp Adair's 1,800 buildings were dismantled and sold for scrap. But not the chapels: Marked for special treatment, all 11 were set aside for religious organizations to be used for worship or war memorials.

A man who grew up at the edge of the 57,000-acre base became interested in the camp's history and set out to find the chapels. It took two years and some help from readers of the Corvallis Gazette-Times and its nearby affiliate, the Albany Democrat-Herald.

But with a recent visit to a church in Sweet Home that passed through the hands of a Mormon congregation to a nondenominational church, 71-year-old Gary Richards completed his quest.

"It is the right one," Richards said, gazing at distinctive laminated wooden arches supporting the ceiling. "They've shortened it up a little bit, changed the windows, but it's definitely a Camp Adair chapel."

Richards, who plans a book on the camp, got leads on many of the chapels from John H. Baker, author of a 2003 history titled "Camp Adair."

He'd tracked down nine when the papers published a story in July about his project. He was deluged by tips from readers. Most turned out to be dead ends, but some were fruitful.

Last month Richards confirmed the location of chapel No. 10: Saint Paul's Episcopal Church in Crescent City, Calif., about 275 miles south of where it was built.

Then Henry Wolthuis, 75, of the Sweet Home Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints got in touch to supply the missing piece of the puzzle.

According to church records, Wolthuis said, Ivan and Leone Burnett formed a small Mormon congregation in Sweet Home in the early 1940s, hosting services in their home or local union halls.

In 1947 or 1948, when surplus buildings at Camp Adair went up for sale, they put together $1,000 to purchase a chapel and moved it to Sweet Home, using their own labor and a borrowed truck.

"With eight male members in the congregation, they bought the building in Camp Adair and tore it down board by board," Wolthuis said. "They put the pieces in the back of that truck and hauled it over, load by load by load."

After months of work, the congregation dedicated the church building in 1949. The congregation grew, and in 1976 the church moved into a new and bigger building in another part of town. Now the old chapel is home to a small flock of Christian worshippers, about 30 members of the Abiding Life Community Church.

"OLD HABITS DIE HARD"

I began a study in our Wednesday evening Bible Class recently on the journey of Israel out of Egypt and their travels to Canaan. In my reading through the Old Testament this year I noted some information in Ezekiel 20 that made a significant impact in my class material. Ezekiel (a prophet during the captivity) reveals that Israel had been involved in idolatry while in Egypt (20:5-8). Had it not been for God's promise to bring the Savior into the world through the bloodline of Abraham he would have destroyed them right there. To protect and honor His name and keep His promise God endured long with Israel. This explains why they persisted for generations in some form of idolatry. No wonder when God delivered the 10 commandments to Moses He began by condemning other gods and commanding them to neither make them nor bow down to them. That is exactly what they had been doing. It seems they thought they could simply blend the worship of God in with the worship of their own idols. The plagues on Egypt against their gods was as much for Israel as it was the Egyptians. As you continue reading through Ezekiel 20 you discover that God continued to test Israel and they consistently failed the tests. Why? Their hearts were not solely committed to the one true God (there were the faithful exceptions). When Judah was finally carried into Babylonian captivity idolatry ceased among them. For hundreds of years, generations of Jews had lived and died lost because of an old habit (sin) they would not lay aside. Many today seem convinced they can mix their own ways with God's ways and it turn out well! Sorry! Jesus said, "No man can serve two masters...." (Matthew 6:24). God will keep His word, what will you do?

No matter how bad things seem, God's still in control

Dear Dr. Graham: The other day, a friend asked me why I was such a pessimist.

Well, until that moment I don't think I'd ever realized I was like this, but she's probably right.

How can I get out of this? Or should I? After all, there are a lot of things wrong with the world.

— S.B.

Dear S.B.: Someone once asked me if I was an optimist or a pessimist, and I replied that I was an optimist — because I had read the last book of the Bible!

What I meant was this: No matter how discouraging things seem, the Bible tells us that God is ultimately in control, and some day He will intervene to destroy all evil and injustice.

That will happen, the Bible says, when Jesus Christ returns to Earth to usher in His kingdom of perfect righteousness and peace.

The Bible says, "But in keeping with his promise we are looking forward to a new heaven and a new earth, the home of righteousness" (2 Peter 3:13). Is your hope in Him?

Admittedly some people always tend to look on the dark side of things; it

BILLY GRAHAM

just seems to be part of their personality. (The opposite is true, of course; other people always seem to be cheerful and optimistic.)

But no matter what we're like, God wants us to lift our eyes to Him, and take comfort in His promises.

If you truly believe, for example, that God loves you and is always with you, won't it make a difference in your attitude?

God has not promised that we'll ever live in a perfect world — not until Christ comes again.

But He has promised to be with us always — and you can trust His promises.

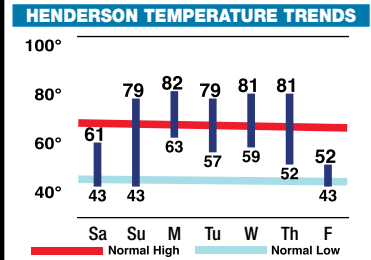

Put Christ first in your life, and then ask Him to remind you every day of His constant goodness and presence.

May I play through? Shark drops in on golf course

The Associated Press

SAN JUAN CAPISTRANO, Calif. — Nobody yelled “Fore!” at a Southern California golf course when a 2-foot-long shark dropped out of the sky and flopped around on the 12th tee.

The 2-pound leopard shark was apparently plucked from the ocean by a bird then dropped on San Juan Hills Golf Club, Melissa McCormack, director of club operations, said Thursday.

No one was teeing up when the shark fell Monday afternoon, although some golfers had just left the area, she said.

A course marshal, who makes sure players maintain an appropriate pace, saw something moving around on the tee and went to investigate.

He found the shark bleeding with puncture wounds, where it seems the bird had held it in its grasp.

The marshal put the shark in his golf cart and drove it back to the clubhouse.

“He went above and beyond,” McCormack said.

The marshal, McCormack and employee Bryan Stizer wanted to help the small shark, so they stuck it in a bucket of water.

Then somebody remembered it wasn’t a fresh water animal, so they stirred up some “homemade sea water” using sea salt from the kitchen, she said.

“We knew we had to get it to the ocean as fast as possible,” McCormack said.

She grabbed a photo of the shark before Stizer headed to the sea.

“When Brian put it in the water, it didn’t move,” she said, “but then it flipped and took off.”

It’s the first time anyone could remember a shark falling from the sky at the golf course.

“We have your typical coyotes, skunks and the occasional mountain lion, but nothing like a shark,” McCormack said.

College Football

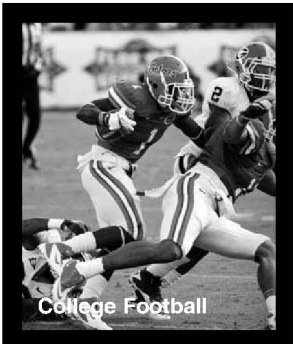

One of college football's great rivalries gets another chapter today in Jacksonville, Fla., when the Georgia Bulldogs face the Florida Gators in a battle of SEC powers. Last year, the Bulldogs got a rare win in the series, overcoming early mistakes and capitalizing on turnovers to beat the Gators 24-20. But the Gators have had a death grip on the Bulldogs for the past 22 years, with an 18-4 record against them since 1990.

8 p.m. on A
Parking Wars

In the first of two new episodes, a couple of guys in Detroit park on the sidewalk to have a prayer meeting, but divine intervention isn't forthcoming when Pontytail writes them a ticket. In Providence, a bad haircut brings Johnny good luck, while Debbie plays a cat-and-mouse game with a construction worker.

8 p.m. on 63
Movie: Rise of the Zombies

Survivors of a zombie plague escape their refuge on the island of Alcatraz when it's overrun, risking the outside world to find a scientist who is rumored to have found a cure for the disease. Mariel Hemingway, LeVar Burton, Danny Trejo and French Stewart star in this new horror tale.

College Football

8 p.m. on 113
Movie: The Good Witch's
Charm

Catherine Bell and Chris Potter are back for the latest in this popular series of films. Bell's character, Cassie Nightingale, is now the town mayor and the mother of a newborn. She's busy and not getting a lot of sleep. But her plans for a much-needed vacation are derailed by a sudden crime wave, a nosy investigative reporter (Geordie Johnson) and her estranged foster mother (Janet-Laine Green). It's a peck of trouble for the Good Witch this time out.

9 p.m. on 113
Movie: Contagion

A fast-spreading virus puts international disease experts to the test, not only to identify the cause but to prevent mass global panic, in this effective 2011 thriller from director Steven Soderbergh. In his all-star cast, he re-enlists Matt Damon ("Ocean's Eleven") as one of the first people to feel the effects of the crisis, when his wife (Gwyneth Paltrow) comes down with the illness. Jude Law and Kate Winslet also star.

9:10 p.m. on 113
Movie: As Good as It Gets

The title is a bit of an exaggeration — it's no "Casablanca" — but this 1997 comedy-drama is still tons of fun, with Oscar-winning work by leads Jack Nicholson and Helen Hunt. He plays a writer whose obsessive-compulsive disorder isn't as disabling a condition as his terminal obnoxiousness. She plays a waitress whose relationship with him transforms him into something resembling a decent human being. Greg Kinnear also stars.

9:15 p.m. on A
Movie: Predator

Arnold Schwarzenegger stars in this 1987 actioner as Dutch, the leader of a commando team sent into a Central American jungle to rescue downed airmen. At first clueless, they soon realize they are being methodically hunted by a creature able to camouflage itself in any part of the brush. Carl Weathers, Bill Duke, Jesse Ventura and Kevin Peter Hall co-star.

9:30 p.m. on 6A
The Cleveland Show

When Holt (voice of Jason Sudeikis) confesses to Cleveland (voice of Mike Henry) that he wishes he had a special someone in his life, Cleveland tries to set him up with cat-loving Jill (voice of guest star Fergie). Cleveland Jr. and Rallo (voices of Kevin Michael Richardson and Henry) anticipate the birth of Rallo's pet fish in "Buried Pleasure."

9:30 p.m. on 7
Movie: The Girl With the Dragon Tattoo

Rooney Mara earned an Oscar nomination for her striking transformation in cine-ma's second run at the Stieg Larsson best-seller, about a decidedly unconventional computer hacker who helps a disgraced reporter (Daniel Craig) probe a years-ago disappearance. Director David Fincher ("The Social Network") gives the result a haunting atmosphere, justifying this second screen variation; Christopher Plummer, Robin Wright and Stellan Skarsgard also star.

10 p.m. on 7
Burn Notice

Someone is after Michael (Jeffrey Donovan) — in a big way. An assassin is trying to take him out, which makes his current project — trying to save a friend's daughter from the clutches of a prostitution ring — a bit difficult, to say the least. But he's the hero of this show, so we expect he'll make it out of this episode alive. Gabrielle Anwar and Sharon Gless also star in "Old Friends."

Emily Deschanel

10 p.m. on 113
Bones

It's a little late to be ripping off "The Blair Witch Project," but if you've forgotten that 1999 film phenom, you'll be able to relate to Brennan (Emily Deschanel), who probably never heard of it. In "The Headless Witch in the Woods," she and Booth (David Boreanaz) investigate a mysterious murder that comes with an even more mysterious clue: a videotape from the night of the killing. TJ Thayne and Michaela Conlin also star.
